Red space station aloft

MOSCOW (UPI) — The Soviet Union today launched a new kind of satellite called "Salute" and scientific sources said it will be the basis of a lengthy project to build the first manned station in space.

A report by the Soviet news agency Tass did not specify if Salute was manned but the scientific sources said it was not. They said there will be more launches in the coming days involving manned vehicles which will rendezvous with Salute and begin the construction project.

They predicted the mission will be complex, spectacular and lengthy-running several weeks.

The name "Salute" never before has been used for Soviet spacecraft, suggesting that it is a new type built especially for the space station mission.

Salute's orbit was exactly the same as that used for most Soviet manned shots — a nearly circular flight path some 140 miles over the earth and passing over the Soviet Union's Baiknour Cosmodrome in Kazakhstan.

The Soviet manned space program of recent years has concentrated exclusively on the goal of building a space platform. A whole series of flights by Soyuz spacecraft in the last three years has tested the systems and theories of platform building.

In recent weeks top Soviet space scientists have discussed the project in the press, indicating Soviet confidence the platform soon will be a reality.

The TASS report of the launch called the Sputnik a "station," suggesting it had a purpose different from previous unmanned shots usually called "sputniks," or "Scientific Satellites."

The Salute orbital parameters included an angle of inclination of 51.6 degrees, period of revolution of 88.5 minutes, maximum distance from the surface of the earth of 133 miles and a minimum distance of 120 miles.

The parameters were almost precisely the same as previous manned Soyuz flights in which Soviet cosmonauts practiced skills necessary for construction of an orbital space station.

"The onboard system, equipment and scientific apparatuses of the station function normally," TASS said. "The coordination-computing center processes incoming information."

Scientific sources in Moscow have predicted at least two vehicles carrying two or more cosmonauts will be used in the coming space spectacle.

'Salute' soars

SOVIET UNION launched today a mysterious new satellite called "Salute" and western space experts speculate it is the first stage of an effort to build a manned orbital platform. This is a Soviet artist's concept of space linkup by two manned Soyuz-type ships. The orbit of the satellite sent up today is reported to be the same as used in previous Soviet manned flights. (UPI)

Budget hearing tonight

TWIN FALLS — The public hearing for a Twin Falls school district budget calling for a 12-per-cent increase in district taxes is scheduled to begin at 8 p.m. today in the school administration offices.

The district, hampered by reduced state funding, has developed a budget calling for a 3.7-mill increase in the district tax levy, bringing it to 39 mills for the coming school year. The general fund of $3.325 million envisions a total assessed valuation in the district of $30 million for 1971.

—The budget includes $3.05 million for general school purposes; $60,000 in plant facilities fund; $122,000, bond interest and redemption and $90,000 for the emergency levy. The plant facilities fund will require a two-mill levy, and the emergency levy will be funded with three mills of taxation.

By item, general fund revenue includes school district taxes received, $1.12 million, up from the 1970-71 budget of $874,463.38; elementary tuition, $800, down from $1,200; secondary tuition, $2,000 and $1,800; earnings on investments, $15,000 and $18,000; other revenue, $30,000 and $24,000; textbooks, supplies and fees, $2,000 and $45,000; county apportionment, foundation program, $270,000 and $270,479.39; state apportionment, foundation program, $1.538 million and $1.398 million; vocational education, including state funds, $15,000 and $25,000 and other non-revenue income, $200 and $200.

The proposed budget also includes $57,000 for elementary-school principals' salaries; $92,000 for secondary - school principals' salaries; $868,000 for elementary teachers' pay and $999,000 for upper-division teachers' salaries.

Ali claim argued

WASHINGTON (UPI) —The attorney for former heavyweight champion Muhammad Ali asked the Supreme Court today to honor the boxer's claim to conscientious objector status on grounds he opposes war in general.

A seat was reserved for Ali, but he did not show up as his counsel, Chicago attorney Chauncery Eskridge, and U.S. Solicitor General Erwin Griswold presented their arguments on the appeal of Ali's conviction for resisting the draft.

Eskridge contended that the Justice Department misled Ali's draft authorities in an advisory letter which characterized his objections to war as racial and political rather than religious.

Eskridge insisted that Ali's adherence to the Black Muslim faith entitled him to conscientious objector status because of opposition to war in general.

Griswold countered that while the government conceded Ali's religious beliefs, the former champion was being selective in his war opposition and was not a true pacifist.

Ali, whose original name was Cassius Clay, was opposed only to "the white man's war," Griswold argued, but indicated his willingness to fight in defense of "black men if necessary."

The government's attorney also asserted that Muslim countries have often warred in the past and "the traditional, historical Muslim religion is not pacifist as stipulated by the Selective Service law."

A written opinion by the nation's highest court will be forthcoming before the current session adjourns in mid-June. It will determine whether Ali must serve a five-year prison sentence and pay a $10,000 fine for deliberately refusing to be inducted into the Army April 28, 1967.

Pilot seeks pair missing in Nevada

BONNIE BAIRD JONES
Times-News Writer

TWIN FALLS — Robert Harney, Twin Falls, conducted an aerial search today for two arrow head hunters reported missing in the vicinity of Jarbidge, Nev.

Robert Mingo told Twin Falls County sheriff's officers Sunday night his 13-year old son, Mike, and Lance Cantrell, 25, Twin Falls, left for the area Saturday planning to stay overnight and hunt artifacts.

Mingo told officers the pair planned to return no later than 6 p.m. Sunday.

Mrs. Mingo said this morning they had not yet returned but had taken sleeping bags and food and would be all right if they stayed in their vehicle. Harney, who was also in the area Saturday and Sunday said he saw the two and said heavy snow fell Sunday. He said they probably became stranded by the snow and slick roads and he planned to fly over the area where he had seen them.

Robert Mingo, accompanied by the father of Lance Cantrell, drove into the area today to help search for the missing pair.

Drive out

SAIGON (UPI) —Vice President Nguyen Cao Ky said Sunday a South Vietnamese invasion of North Vietnam to topple its Communist government and unify Vietnam "is not possible."

"There is only one way (to end the war) —a political solution or an agreement," he said at a news conference.

Middle East talks due

By United Press International

The simmering Middle East situation blew up again Saturday when Egypt, Libya and Syria formed an anti-Israeli federation and leaders of all three countries announced there would be "no reconciliation and no negotiations" with Israel.

Diplomatic sources said Allon would meet with top U.S. officials and seek U.S. guarantees that should Israel pull back from the Suez Canal the Russians and Egyptians would not move in behind them. Washington has been reported reluctant to give such guarantees.

Political sources said Mrs. Meir requested the meeting with Ambassador H. Walworth Barbour and that he drove to Jerusalem from Tel Aviv for the meeting after Allon had departed. The sources said the three cabinet ministers discussed the stepped up arms shipments from tte Soviet Union to Egypt, proposals for opening the Suez Canal and the effect of the new Arab federation on the Mideast.

Wendell woman dies in crash

By PEGGY CHU
Times-News Writer

WENDELL — Mrs. Alta Ruth Marsh, 57, Wendell, was killed Saturday evening when the auto she was riding in struck a parked car five and one-half miles north of here on Highway 46.

Investigating officers Dale Bunn and Jim Burke said the mishap occurred at 10:05 p.m. Saturday and the Marsh auto was traveling south when it struck the parked auto at about 70 miles per hour.

The parked auto is owned by Jacob Jacobson, Wendell.

The officers said Mrs. Marsh was in the back seat on the right hand side and her daughter-in-law, Mrs. Joseph Marsh Jr., Boise, was on the other side of the back seat. Joseph Marsh Sr., Wendell, was driving and his son, Joseph Marsh Jr., Boise, was on the passenger side of the front seat.

Officers said the right rear part of the Marsh auto struck the parked auto, which was not marked by lights or flares. Officers said Jacobson had left the auto jacked up and had gone to Wendell for a spare tire.

The Marshs were taken to Gooding Memorial Hospital where Joseph Marsh Sr. and Mrs. Joseph Marsh Jr. were treated and released. The younger Marsh is reported in good condition today.

The Gooding County sheriff's office is continuing investigation of the mishap.

Vets launch peace drive

WASHINGTON (UPI) —Several hundred war veterans, many clad in the combat uniforms they wore in the Vietnam jungles, marched across Memorial Bridge to Arlington National Cemetery today, kicking off a week of antiwar demonstrations in the capital.

The veterans carried a huge red-and-white banner proclaiming "Vets Against The War" during their morning rush-hour march from an assembly point near the Lincoln Memorial. Leaders said that more than 1,000 vets signed up—many of them spending a cold night huddled in coats or bedrools on the grass in low-40 degree weather.

With two crippled veterans in wheel chairs leading the parade the men stepped off before 8 o'clock on their way to the cemetery, to leave wreaths in honor of some dead veterans. The great majority of the marchers — including some women who said they had been Army nurses and who also wore combat fatigues and heavy shoes—were white.

Numerous events are planned during the week by the antiwar veterans and other peace groups ending to a climactic march and rally Saturday. Coordinating the main efforts is the National Peace Action Committee.

Viet units cut to 284,000 men

SAIGON (UPI) — American forces in Vietnam have been cut to 284,000, the Phase Six goal set by President Nixon for May 1, military sources said today.

The figure was reached two weeks ahead of schedule due to an early start in December so more GIs could be home for Christmas. It was the lowest number of troops in Vietnam since July 30, 1966, when the total was 285,000 and increasing to the peak of 543,400 reached in April, 1969.

The commander of South Vietnamese forces engaged in an offensive in the A Shau valley said today he may ask for support from U.S. armor in addition to the already-promised help of American infantry, artillery and helicopters.

U.S. spokesmen said two F105 Thunderchief fighter-bombers escorting B52s bombing the Ho Chi Minh Trail in Laos fired on North Vietnamese antiaircraft sites early today in a "protective reaction" strike when they received electronic indications the Communists were preparing to fire on the bombers. One of the sites was in Laos and the other in North Vietnam. There was no indication whether Shrike missiles fired by the American planes had any effect.

Lands linked

EGYPT, SYRIA, and Libya have formed Federation of Arab Republics, embracing almost half Arab world's population and 1.1 million square miles of territory around Mediterranean Sea. Provisions of federation bar political interference in internal affairs of member states, although military interference may be allowed. ## Airport agency formation slated

TWIN FALLS — The first formal step toward creation of a regional airport authority will be taken during the annual South Idaho Chamber of Commerce membership meeting April 29 at the College of Southern Idaho.

Neil Weir, Rupert, chairman of the interim airport commission, said he will distribute petitions calling for election of a regional airport commission to chamber members. Each of the eight counties involved in the regional airport proposal will be asked to gather signatures, with approval of at least five per cent of the registered voters in each county required to call the election.

When the regional airport commission is named, they will work toward the next step, approval of financing for the construction of the regional airport — about $8 million at present estimates, Weir said.

The South Idaho Chamber meeting will begin at 1:30 at the college, with the specific location to be determined, for the business meeting. A dinner will follow for chamber members and their wives at 7 p.m. in the CSI dining facilities, at $5 per plate.

Magic Valley legislators and members of the interim airport commission and their wives will be the honored guests at the dinner, according to Dr. James L. Taylor, president of the South Idaho Chamber.

Discussions of the regional airport proposal and the plans for a wilderness area in the Sawtooths are scheduled for the afternoon business session. The executive committee of the chamber has selected an area along Interstate 80 and U.S. Highway 93 north of Twin Falls for the regional airport, Weir said. The area is all desert and is owned by the Bureau of Land Management, minimizing problems of acquisition. There are no farms in the area to be disrupted by construction of an airport, and no housing developments to be considered.

"We consider it an ideal site for development of a large airport," Weir told the Times-News.

Nixon endorses quick welfare setup reforms

WILLIAMSBURG, Va. (UPI) —President Nixon said today the nation can no longer afford a welfare system "under which working people can be made to feel like fools by those who will not work."

The President called the present welfare system a "monumental failure" and said welfare reform was "White House priority No. 1."

Nixon said it is time to reverse the attitude that some jobs are demeaning. He said there is as much dignity in "scrubbing floors or emptying bed pans" as there is in any other job including the presidency.

"If a job puts bread on the table and gives you the satisfaction of providing for your children and lets you look everyone else in the eye, I do not think that is menial," he said.

Nixon made his comments, among his toughest to date on the welfare system, in a speech prepared for the Republican Governors Association.

Nixon commended GOP governors Ronald Reagan of California and Nelson Rockefeller of New York, for getting tough with welfare recipients.

"For their efforts in this area —for biting a bullet the entire country is going to have to bite if we are going to bring the financial—and worse, the human—costs of the present welfare system under control."

The President said he advocated a system "which will encourage people to work" where work is available.

"It is incredible that we have allowed a system of laws under which one person can be penalized for doing an honest day's work and another person can be rewarded for doing nothing," he said.

Teachers back in classrooms

NEWARK, N.J. (UPI)—The black mayor of this predominantly black city this weekend found a compromise to the power struggle between a predominantly white teachers' union and a black-dominated school board, and thus a way to end an 11-week teachers' strike.

The strike, longest by teachers' in a major American city, ended today after raising racial tensions in the community.

Mayor Kenneth A. Gibson had proposed the re-instatement of 347 striking teachers and the compromise language on two disputed clauses in the previous contract—one clause provided "binding arbitration" of disputes over contract interpretation, and the other freed teachers from "non-professional chores. Both the union and the board ratified his plan Sunday. A money settlement had already been made.

Today is the first day of school after the 10-day spring vacation. Educators expected the largest attendance since the strike began Feb. 1.

All schools were open throughout the strike, but half the 4,400 teachers and the 78,000 regularly stayed away. Schools in predominantly black areas had large attendances despite picket lines, while both teachers and children observed picket lines in white areas.

Thieves hit parked car

TWIN FALLS — Bill Kimball, Kimberly, told Twin Falls police today someone entered his parked automobile while it was in a lot at the Alley Club and removed three items.

He said a pair of rodeo chaps valued at $86.50, a bareback rigging valued at $100 and a nylon vest worth $20 were taken. Kimball said he thought the vehicle had been locked but added the left front door might have been unlocked.

Question . . .

My deceased husband was a combat veteran of World War II. Our son has always wanted to attend West Point. Can you tell me if there are any appointments available for the son of a deceased serviceman?

Answer . . .

The President of the United States is empowered by law to appoint sons of certain deceased servicemen to the United States Naval, Army and Air Force Academies. These appointments are in addition to those made by members of Congress!

The President may appoint 40 sons of deceased servicemen to each academy. These appointees must be sons of men who lost their lives serving their country, or who died of wounds or injuries received in active service. Candidates are selected inorder of merit by competitive examinations.

The President may also appoint annually without competitive examinations 100 men, who are sons of servicemen on active duty, who are retired, or who died after retiring.

TWIN FALLS — Dennis Pounds, 20, Twin Falls, was listed in good condition at Magic Valley Memorial Hospital today where he was being treated for injuries suffered in a single-car accident Saturday morning.

He was one of three persons injured when the vehicle he was driving failed to negotiate a corner and rolled over in the 300 block of Buchanan Street.

Escapees hunted

BOISE (UPI) — Law enforcement officers in southwestern Idaho searched today for two escapees from the state prison, one of them a killer considered dangerous.

Officials at the penitentiary identified the fugitives as Frank Joseph Martinez, 26, and Charles Edward Griggs, 29.

Martinez, sent up from Canyon County in 1965, was serving a 30-year sentence for second-degree murder. Officials said he is considered dangerous.

Griggs was serving a three-year term for insufficient fund checks.

Alta Marsh

WENDELL — Mrs. Alta Ruth Marsh, 57, Wendell, died Saturday night in an automobile accident north of here.

She was born Sept. 2, 1913, in Princeton, Ind., and was married to Joseph Marsh on Nov. 6, 1936. They lived in several towns in Indiana and in Parryville, Mo., where they purchased half-interest in a photo shop. They were there for three years before moving to Robinson, Ill., where they owned and operated a photo shop for five years.

They moved to Wendell in 1950.

Surviving, besides her husband are a son, Joseph Marsh Jr., Boise; two brothers, Donald Campbell, Princeton, and Jess Campbell, Lake Geneva, Wis.; a sister, Mrs. Robert (Dorothy) McClentic, Indiana; her mother, Mrs. Joseph Campbell, Princeton. A brother preceded her in death.

Funeral services will be conducted at 2 p.m. Wednesday in the Wendell United Methodist Church by Rev. Woodrow Harris. Final rites will be in the Wendell Cemetery. Friends may call at Leeper Mortuary Tuesday and until time of services Wednesday.

Teresa Hewitt

TWIN FALLS — Mrs. Teresa Murphy Hewitt, 66, Twin Falls, died of an apparent heart attack early Monday morning at her home.

She was born July 17, 1904, in Neola, Iowa, and has lived in Idaho since March, 1915. She was a former employe of Rogers Brothers Seed Co. and a member of the St. Edward's Catholic Church.

She was married to William V. Hewitt on Sept. 25, 1945, in Twin Falls.

Surviving, besides her husband are a sister, Mrs. Regina Lee, Twin Falls, and two nieces and two great-nieces. Her parents and two brothers preceded her in death.

White Mortuary will announce funeral arrangements.

Harvey Carter

DECLO — Harvey J. Carter, 72, former Declo resident, died Friday at Blackfoot hospital.

He was born Dec. 25, 1899, in Virginia. He had been employed in construction and as a farm laborer and while living in the Declo area he was employed by Jones Leonard and Ray Anderson ranches.

Funeral services will be conducted at 10 a.m. Tuesday in Joseph Payne Memorial Chapel, Burley, by Rev. David Buzza. Final rites will be in the Declo Cemetery. Friends may call at the mortuary Monday afternoon and evening and Tuesday prior to services.

Utility hearing starts

SEATTLE (UPI) — The Senate Commerce Committee meets here today and Tuesaay to hear testimony on a U. S. Supreme Court order against the El Paso Natural Gas Co.

The court has ruled that El Paso must be forced to sell the Northwest Natural Gas Co. regional pipeline because their merger violates anti-trust laws.

The case has been in the courts for several years following the 1957 merger of the two companies that was approved by the Federal Power Commission.

A considerable debt was incurred while the court case was pending and supporters of El Paso say that unless an exemption is granted, there will be higher rates for natural gas in the Pacific Northwest.

Gov. Dan Evans said recently that the public interest can best be served by "appropriate action" permitting El Paso to continue its operations.

Sen. Warren G. Magnuson, D-Wash., will head the hearings. Scheduled to testify were Evans and the governors of Oregon, Idaho and Wyoming, or their representatives.

IEA to formulate state sanctions

BOISE (UPI) — A legislative action committee of the Idaho Education Association will meet in Boise in about two weeks to formulate a teacher sanction against the state.

In a nearly-unanimous action Saturday, the 78th annual Delegate Assembly asked the legislative committee to define the sanctions and put them into effect as soon as possible.

Mrs. Louise Jones, New Meadows, outgoing IEA president, said committee members first will visit school districts to get first-hand opinions from teachers on "the kind of sanction they would like to see put into effect."

Meantime, the Delegate Assembly approved without discussion a legislative committee recommendation suggesting a shorter school year.

This recommendation asks the State Board of Education to establish the "cost of quality education per day per child in Idaho and then annually set the number of days rather than the quality of education be reduced."

Mrs. Jones said the recommendation "definitely" could lead to a shorter school year if the legislative appropriation to public schools is inadequate to assure a quality education for the full 180-day school year.

In an apparent effort to strengthen the organization's effectiveness in the political and legislative area, delegates made the position of president a full-time job.

Ron Finn, a Twin Falls high school teacher, assumes the responsibility in July.

The IEA also gave "number one priority" to hiring a full-time, professional communications director.

Earlier at the concluding session of the two-day assembly, delegates called for a $10 million increase in state aid to the public schools for the 1972-73 acadeoic year.

They also asked for some type of statewide tax increase to finance the boost in spending.

MRS. BILL JAMISON, Twin Falls, second from right, was the Toastmistress Council speech contest winner Saturday evening in Burley. Looking on are Mrs. LePage Layton, Burley, left, toastmistress; Mrs. Norman King, Burley, second from left, first runner-up, and Mrs Ben Eldredge, Twin Falls, right, Council Seven chairman.

Speakers confer

Toastmistress fete won by T.F. woman

BURLEY — Mrs. Peggy Jamison of Twin Falls, speaking on "A Test for Americans," won first place in the regional speech competition of Council 7, Idaho Toastmistress Clubs, Saturday at the Ponderosa Inn.

Mrs. Gwen King, Burley, was second with a talk on "Mask of Dawn."

Mrs. Jamison will represent the Toastmistress Council at the Snake River regional conference June 18 through 20 at the Holiday Inn in Twin Falls.

Other speakers were Eleanor Stoller, speaking on "Adventures in Pioneering," and Diana Vollmer, with "Straight and Forward."

Mrs. LePage Layton of Burley served as Toastmistress for the speech contest. Other council members participating included Mrs. Virginia Eldridge, Twin Falls, council chairman, who opened the meeting; Mrs. John Burkhart, Twin Falls, who offered the invocation; and led the pledge to the flag; Mrs. Vida Shufield, president of the Minico club, hosts of the meeting, who offered the welcome, and Mrs. Harlow Cheney, Burley, who returned the response.

Each of the contestants was given three different subjects one week before the competition, and allowed to develop a five-to-seven-minute address on one of the three.

Judges were Mrs. Evelyn Foster and William B. Foster, both of Twin Falls; Bob Mavity, Burley, and Clifford Nutting, Rupert. The speech contest committee included Mrs. Marianne Bohon, Minico, chairman; Mrs. Eldredge, co-chairman; Mrs. Wallace Sharples, Burley, and Mrs. Jo Hillis of Minico.

Tellers were Mrs. Ellis Fuller, Twin Falls, chairman; Mrs. R.D. Young, Magic; Mrs. Sharples, Burley, and Mrs. Ellen Grant, Minico. Timers were Mrs. Lee Bitzenberg, Twin Falls, and Mrs. Freida Manning, Burley.

Pages were Mrs. Olin Baker, Burley; Mrs. LaVerne Strong, Magic; Mrs. Deloris Couch, Minico, and Mrs. John Pastoor, Twin Falls.

A luncheon was served following the speech contest. The council business meeting was held after the luncheon conducted by Mrs. Eldredge, council chairman.

New council officers were elected including Mrs. Ellis Fuller, Twin Falls, chairman; Mrs. Olin Baker, Burley, vice-chairman; Mrs. Harold Holton, Minico, secretary; and Mrs. LaVerne Strong, Magic, treasurer. The new officers will be installed during the May 22 council meeting which will be hosted by Burley Toastmistress Club.

It was announced that the Twin Falls Toastmistress Club now has 30 members, which is the top number of members permitted per club.

Mrs. LeRoy Arrington, Twin Falls, Snake River Regional Toastmistress supervisor, reported that Mrs. Jean Weber, Idaho Falls, president-elect of International Toastmistress Clubs, and Mrs. Thelma McClelland, Manitoba, Canada, vice-president of Northern Toastmistress Region will both conduct workshops during the Snake River Regional Conference in June.

Speakers during the conference will be Dr. Royal Garff, Salt Lake City, a professor on the staff of the University of Utah for over 20 years and author of the book "You Can Learn to Speak", lecturer and humorist, and Richard High, Twin Falls, editor of the Times-News.

Mrs. Arrington also said that the first flyers have been mailed giving information on the Snake River Regional Conference.

Mrs. John Burkhart, Twin Falls, coordinator for the regional conference, reported that committees are being appointed. Advance registrations may be mailed to Mrs. John Pastoor, Route 2, Twin Falls.

Camp work slated

TWIN FALLS — Grading, graveling and paving of campground entrances and parking areas in the Rock Creek area is planned for this summer, Twin Falls Ranger Lewis Munson, Sawtooth National Forest announced.

He said work on grading entrance roads will begin immediately and gravel will be hauled in to prepare for oiling as soon as weather permits. The work will involve all major campgrounds below Third Fork of Rock Creek, he said, and will be dor by the Forest Service.

This will complete the new road construction project of last summer below Third Fork, he said, and will tie campground entrances in with the paving project.

During oiling, he said, the campgrounds will be closed to the public, probably for about a week.

Idaho educators join celebration of Library Week

BOISE (UPI) — Boise schools and other groups are observing this week as National Library Week.

Various events have been planned, including a Friday luncheon, at which Edward V. Williams, administrative assistant to Gov. Cenil Andrus, will be main speaker. National LibraryWeek contest winners will be announced at that time.

Arabian nations federate

CAIRO (UPI) — The leaders of Egypt, Syria and Libya announced Saturday night the formation of a "Federation of Arab Republics" that will embrace nearly half of the 90 million people of the Arab world.

They said its main aim will be the liberation of all occupied Arab territory and vowed there would be no reconciliation and no negotiation with Israel.

The announcement came in simultaneous broadcasts from their capitals by President Anwar Sadat of Egypt, President Hafez Assad of Syria and Premier Moammar el-Khadafy of Libya.

They said the new federation would have one flag, one anthem and one capital.

Public referendums will be held in Cairo, Damascus and Tripoli on Sept. 1 to approve the new grouping of the three Arab states, it was announced.

Crime study set for attorneys

SHOSHONE — A crime study will be made at a meeting for prosecuting attorneys, sheriffs and chiefs of police of Lincoln, Camas, Gooding and Blaine counties at 10 a.m. Wednesday at the courthouse in Shoshone.

A program will be formulated for combatting crime and sale of narcotic drugs, Howard Adkins, county prosecuting attorney, is in charge of arrangements.

Fred Kennedy, of the Idaho attorney general's office, will speak.

Use of Sawtooths tops other areas

TWIN FALLS — Idahoans still derive a majority of the use benefit of the Sawtooth Primitive area, according to reports released by Robert Hoag, recreation officer of the Sawtooth National Forest staff.

Figures for the past summer show 3,473 persons registered for use of camping and picnic facilities in the area or for other recreational use. Of these, 2,396 or 69 per cent gave Idaho addresses, he said.

Next largest use state was Califnoria with 486 or 14 per cent while Utah accounted for four per cent and Oregon for three percent of the use.

The area accommodated 12,000 registered visitor days and a total of 4,004 visitors including those who registered for use areas and estimated other visitors. Forest Officials estimated 13,888 visitor days including registered and non-registered users.

Fire engine bids called for April 29

TWIN FALLS — Purchase of an additional fire engine for Twin Falls, with a bid opening scheduled April 29, will bring fire fighting equipment in the city to six engines, City Manager Jean Milar said Saturday.

At the same bid opening, city officials will receive bids on an air compressor and sweeper for the street department and sprayer for the parks department.

Milar said the new fire engine will be a pumper unit and will be housed at the main firestation in the downtown area. The city now has one large aerial ladder truck and five trucks including pumpers and hose units.

He said the oldest unit a 1940 model truck will be retained rather than offered as a trade in. It will help reduce insurance rates by counting as an additional truck. Milar said the 31 year old unit is in good condition and will be retained for stand by use.

Course Change?

Christian Science Monitor

In our first reaction yesterday to Mr. Nixon's latest speech on the war we deliberately left open the question whether he should have been shaken by the wave of revulsion against the war which has followed the Laos invasion and the verdict in the Calley case.

We left it open because this is a subject one must think about most carefully before venturing even the most tentative opinion.

Obviously, no responsible person wants the President of the United States to take a step which would lead to a rear-guard battle and a Dunkirk on the beaches of South Vietnam while the Theu regime collapses in a welter of anarchy and bloodshed.

But is this the only alternative to the policy Mr. Nixon has been pursuing and which he proposed, in his latest speech, to continue to pursue?

His position is unshaken because he himself assumes that it is his only realistic choice. The price he pays for that choice here at home is high and might well run higher. Yet he clings to his policy regardless of present and prospective price.

It seems to us that there is one course of action which might be explored a little further than it ever has. That would be to sound Hanoi out on the idea of a prompt and early American withdrawal in return for a release of all prisoners of war within the context of a military standstill.

This is a plan which has often been canvassed in Washington. It was under serious discussion in the early Nixon era. It was put aside after the Cambodian operation went off well enough to revive the hope of a Korean-type conclusion to the whole war.

As we read the record, Mr. Nixon decided at that time to give the military one last chance to try for the victory which a Korean-type settlement would be. Well, they tried. The Laos invasion was a key part of the effort. And while it was not a total failure, it ended with the North Vietnam Army in full command of the battlefield and the South Vietnam Army injured and reduced in offensive capacity. We will discover in the next dry season what this really cost the enemy.

It seems a reasonable conclusion that Mr. Nixon cannot satisfy the American urge for a speedier ending of the war and still use much more time for Vietnamization.

The middle way would be to go back to the peace tables and see whether, with both sides licking their wounds, this might be the time for a compromise settlement.

On the pages of the history of warfare peace often comes when the fighting has been so inconclusive for so long that both sides doubt the possibility of final victory.

Until the Laos-Calley phase of this long unhappy story one side or the other has always been too confident of victory to be willing to negotiate.

In the early days Washington looked forward to quick and easy victory. Lyndon Johnson expected it within a year of his escalation to a half million Americans. Then came a middle period climaxed by TET when Hanoi became confident that time was on its side. Mr. Nixon hung on for a better position. It was so much better by the end of the Cambodian adventure that he decided to go for the Korean-type conclusion.

We think now that the fighting has probably reached the inconclusive stage where neither side can expect victory. This could therefore be the last best chance for a compromise of the whole war and its issues. At least, it seems to us that Mr. Nixon would be prudent to propose more than he did in his speech. That was, after all, a repetition of old proposals which never had the slightest chance of being accepted.

It is just conceivable now that a standstill of armed forces in place would be the best both sides could hope to get out of the war.

In effect, it would leave the Saigon regime in control of the cities and the Viet Cong in control of some of the agricultural hinterland. They would then have to work out their own accommodation.

It could be worth a try.

The Horses

Idaho State Journal

The current interest in ecology has revived some of the old conservation causes that were once the domain of esoteric groups of nature lovers. An example is the movement to preserve what may be the last living remnant of the Old West — the wild mustangs. A century ago more than three million wild horses roamed the Western states. Now, the Bureau of Land Management estimates there are only about 17,000 of them left. Thousands of the horses were rounded up by entrepreneurs who sold them to manufacturers of pet food and fertilizer. A bill introduced in the Senate by Sen. Henry M. Jackson (D-Wash. would outlaw any further slaughter of the horses and put them under government protection. The house and senate Interior Committees plan to hold hearings on Monday, April 19, and Tuesday, April 20, respectively.

The bill states that "wild free-roaming horses and burros are living symbols of the historic and pioneer spirit of the West" and warns these animals are "fast disappearing from the American scene." It would provide for at least 12 sanctuaries on public lands in areas where the horses now roam, and put them under the protection of the Secretary of the Interior. The only killing allowed would be for the purpose of population control and must be done in a humane way. Most of the remaining horses are now on public lands, but they are specifically protected only on two refuges — one in Nevada and another in the Pryor Mountains on the Montana-Wyoming border.

The mustang issue remains confused, because of the intense emotionalism it engenders and the lack of scientific information about the horses. It has not yet been determined whether they deprive other wildlife and livestock of forage. And not all of the horses are really wild mustangs — descendants of horses brought to this continent by the Spanish explorers. Some descend from the less noble plow horses that escaped from early homesteads and ranches. These horses aren't a "native species" and thus do not qualify for protection under the Endangered Species Act of 1969. But these technicalities are overshadowed by our need to preserve beautiful and spirited animals in a natural setting. Many in the Congress agree, and Fen Jackson's bill — or one like it — should become law.

Case Of Rank Deception

WASHINGTON (NEA) — Every American interested in accurate word about his government — and certainly everyone in the news business — is affected by the modest furor raging over the authenticity of a CBS television documentary called "The Selling of the Pentagon."

Its purpose was to lay bare the Pentagon's huge public relations machinery and show how it is used.

In the course of editing and compressing its interviews and other materials, an always difficult task which confronts reporters and editors in all parts of the media, CBS seriously altered an interview it had with Assistant Defense Secretary Daniel Henkin.

What it did, plainly and unmistakably, was to so rearrange some of Henkin's answering comment that when he was asked, let's say, question No. 3, the television viewer saw and heard him reply with words which, in fact, were part of his answer to another question entirely. This happened more than once in the body of this interview.

In other words, when Henkin was seen to speak, he was not always answering the question that had just been asked. Yet the program unmistakably intended to give the impression he WAS answering the immediate question.

When the Washington Post editorially criticized this practice, first Richard Salant, president of CBS News, and later others, including Reuven Frank, president of NBC News, wrote letters of protest.

The essence of their argument was that CBS was being wrongly assailed for exercising the normal necessities of journalism — editing, condensing, rearranging to get the story told as compactly as possible.

But their right to do this was never attacked. CBS was being criticized very specifically for deliberately giving viewers a wrong impression, not for using its editorial judgement to reinforce a correct impression.

To compare the broadcast interview with the Henkin text at critical points is to find proof of the doctoring. It is rank deception of an order which those of us in the news business are forever deploring when practiced by others.

Salant's answer, and Frank's backup, are totally irrelevant, having to do with issues which were not raised.

Unless we are supposed to believe that these two top network officials are incredibly thick-headed, we have to conclude they are weakly falling back on that old refuge — "freedom of the press."

In the light of what CBS actually did with the Henkin interview, this amounts to demanding the right to distort and deceive. The comments by Yalant especially, as the man in charge, represent one of the more cynical exercises of recent years in the name of "press freedom."

Frank of NBC writes that he finds the criticism of CBS "frightening." Far more frightening is the evidence that two "responsible" network news executives either can't or won't understand the argument made against the CBS documentary.

Frank also suggests that public self-examination by television or other media is "boring" stuff. A questionable point, at a time when many Americans are troubled over the credibility of goernment, business and the media, too.

Maybe the news business is too tough for these fellows. Salant's program, doctored and hence fictionalized, really was show business. Perhaps he should just acknowledge he is in the entertainment field.

Mideast Choice

WASHINGTON — President Nixon's apparent inability to soften Israel's insistence on keeping key portions of the Sinai Peninsula is now leading to a new Soviet military buildup in Egypt and the likelihood of renewed shooting along the Suez Canal.

That means that two years of skillful, patient U.S. diplomacy are threatened with collapse — not tomorrow, but within the next two or three months.

This danger of renewed war has already brought private appeals from one prominent American-Jewish leader to high State Department officials for heavier U.S. pressure on Israel. Speaking only for himself, he said he was concerned that Israel's adamant stand against President Nixon's proposal for full withdrawal from the Egyptian Sinai might turn American public opinion against Israel.

That concern dramatizes the ominous split between Washington and Jerusalem. It comes against a backdrop of increasing diplomatic efforts by U.S. allies in Europe begging Washington to back Israel down. So far, these diplomatic approaches have gotten nowhere. The U.S. and Israel are still on collision course.

Thus, the ruling Israeli Labor Party angered U.S. officials here when it adopted a new party resolution last week demanding "substantial" changes in the pre-1967 Arab-Israeli borders. The use of that word "substantial" was viewed here as a slap at the heart of President Nixon's settlement plan, which would permit only "insubstantial" changes in the pre-war borders.

Moreover, U.S. experts are convinced that Israeli Prime Minister Golda Meir is now at a peak of domestic political power and that if she had chosen to ask her Labor Party to adopt a more conciliatory policy she would have had her way. Thus, Mrs. Meir's extremely hard line is one of conviction and not the result of internal political pressures.

By the same token, the hard-sell by Israeli Foreign Minister Abba Eban in a briefing session with almost one-half the U.S. Senate last month left a very bad taste in high Administration quarters. This attempt to undercut Vresident Mixon's policy in a closed-door meeting inside the U.S. Senate forced Secretary of State William P. Rogers to ask for equal time the following week.

On My Lai

WASHINGTON (NEA) — The sentencing of Lt. Calley and the public reaction that followed had led to considerable introspection by professional Army officers.

The questions, of course, are why did My Lai occur? And what were the factors that motivated Calley and others involved.

At this stage, of course, there is no reliable data. But in discussion with combat Army officers, a certain amount of information has surfaced.

Some of these men have looked back on units and campaigns in which a very strict regard was held for human life (except enemy combat troops). They have compared these units and these campaigns with others where unusually large numbers of civilians were killed or wounded.

Take the units which seemed to produce few civilian casualties. As officers this reporter has talked to recall it, these were outfits in which most of the individual officers and GIs (so far as they could tell) had more sympathy with and felt more empathy for the Vietnamese as persons.

There was less use of the words "gook" or "slope." There were more cooperative projects on which these units and the local citizens worked together, projects in which the Americans got to know and understand the people of the hamlets in the areas in which they were stationed.

Some of these units had taken extremely heavy casualties from civilians. Some had been in actions in which they later discovered the badly mutilated bodies of friends who had been captured. The men in units with which this reporter has had contact firmly believed that this butchery had been done by civilian Viet Cong women. These units had had young boys surreptitiously attack them with grenades. The temptation to be careless with civilian life must have been intense. Yet the civilian casualties were low in these particular outfits considering the intensity of the fighting and the heavy population of some of the combat areas.

Again, in each of the cases the officers recalled, the units with the low civilian-casualty rates were units which had built up friendly, cooperative, personal working relationships with the civilian population in some locality of South Vietnam. There were exceptions. But what is recorded above seemed to be the rule in the overwhelming percentage of the cases remembered.

Toenails

Dear Dr. Thosteson: Please tell me what to do for a fungus under my big toenail. It is like cement, very bothersome. — E.N.

Dear Doctor: My dad has fungus under his toenails which troubles him. He doesn't want to see a doctor. I thought you could write something about fungus. Where it comes from, and what medication is available. — D.W.

Fungus doesn't come from anywhere. It's just around — like germs, poison ivy, or the fungus you see growing on trees or damp wood.

It's a growing thing. By accident, some of it gets carried to some place or other that provides a suitable environment for it, and it settles down and grows.

Funguses, especially those which plague people, find the warm moisture of the feet a comfortable place to live. Comfortable for the fungus; not so comfortable for the host.

Unquestionably a lot of us — all of us, for all I known — come in contact with such fungus spores from time to time. Much of the time it doesn't get a good start, or it is scrubbed or scraped off before it has spread to the extent that we can notice it. There's a probability that some skins, for reasons not known, are not as inviting as others, so far as the fungus is concerned.

Sometimes, depending on chance and the particular type of fungus that is involved, the result of a fungus invasion is athlete's foot. Again, the fungus may manage to burrow under the nails, where you can't get at it, and then it spreads and solidifies.

Some fungus infections yield to the various drug store remedies for athlete's foot. Then again, some of them make such headway that you haven't much chance of getting rid of the trouble without going to a dermatologist who can use more powerful medications.

When fungus establishes itself under the nails, in my experience there isn't any home remedy that is going to solve the problem. You have no way of getting medication down in, where it can attack the fungus effectively.

There are a couple of relatively new medications, both of which require prescriptions, one which is taken internally and the other applied externally, that do a very good job of combatting such funguses — if they happen to be of suitable types.

Again, nothing may seem to work except removing the nail surgically, so the bulk of the fungus can be removed and the remainder treated effectively with medication.

Granted that it takes quite a while for a new toenail to grow, it's still a better prospect than having the fungus persist, and proliferate, and perhaps spread to other toes and other nails.

Unfortunately, the only counsel I have for a person with such fungus who doesn't want to see a doctor is this: it's your choice. Either see your doctor, a podiatrist, or a dermatologist — or make up your mind to have the fungus stay with you.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: We have heard that a doctor can tell how many children a woman has had through a pelvic examination. We think it is an old wives' tale. Is it? J.C.

Yes. Congratulations on spotting a false idea. In fact, it may not be possible for a physician to tell whether a woman has had even one child, let alone being able to tell the number she has had.

---

Low blood sugar — a puzzler until correctly identified — is often the cause of faintness, headaches, visual and emotional disturbances. To learn how it can be identified and brought under control, write to Dr. Thosteson in care of this newspaper for a copy of his booklet, "Help for Hypoglycemia," enclosing a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope and 25 cents in coin to cover cost of printing and handling.

BERRY'S WORLD

"Father, next spring vacation, may I go to Fort Lauderdale?"

Shelter first on 'want' list

NEW YORK (UPI)—Young Americans, many of whom consider themselves emancipated, freed from the material entanglements of their middle class, Establishment backgrounds: what do they want out of life?

They want pretty much what their parents before them wanted —"family, food and fun." Their emphasis may differ, but basically "they want shelter for their families first of all." This is the finding of a survey by Investors Mortgage Insurance Company of Boston.

J. W. Goss, president of the organization which works with ordinary lending organizations, insuring to the top 20 per cent of high-ratio mortgage loans, says he wanted to find out what young Americans —married and single —wanted.

"To do this, I had my company's research division talk to 5,000 young people between the ages of 25 and 35 in 40 of the 50 states," Goss said.

"There's no communication gap here. If you ask them they'll tell you. They told us they want shelter for their families first of all, an old-fashioned virtue in a generation which has been re-examining values to determine just what is important and what isn't."

Persons interviewed were about equally divided between males and females and, Goss said, their viewpoints are strikingly similar. About half were in each of the 25-to-30 and the 30-to-35 age brackets. Of the total, 64 per cent, or 3,200, were married and 71 per cent were college graduates. Another 21 per cent, or 1,050, either owned their own business or were professional people.

When asked their preference in living quarters, 1,600, or 64 per cent, of the 2,500 in the 25-to-30 age group opted for apartment living. In the 30-to-35 category, however, the presence of a growing family was evident, with 60 per cent, or 1,700, expressing a definite preference for individual homes.

A recent special report of The American Plywood Association touched on this same subject and pointed up the speed with which the 25-34 age group is becoming a major influence in the marketplace. "The group numbers just 27 million now. But by 1980," the report noted, "it will have grown to 37 million, or nearly one-sixth of the projected total population."

For the housing industry, the report said, "this means change. It means filling the bill for an optimistic generation of young Americans who, having known only prosperity, are willing to spend money, but unwilling to settle for less than the best in shelter and household goods."

Tempered by his college experience as an "ID" number, stuck in the sameness of suburbia, many a young adult is turning to his own home as the place to express his individuality.

Already, the Plywood Association study said, "young America has inspired the apartment townhouse communities that can offer swimming pools, tennis courts and exercise facilities —and even the luxury of lakes, sailboats, riding stables and golf courses.

"Couples who are better educated, better paid and more selective than their predecessors are unwilling to be shackled to house payments by the same type of conventional single-family dwelling their parents chose."

Although today's young family may be very different in its living habits from its parents, it, too, is using home as a means of self expression. There's just a difference in life style.

Recent surveys, the Plywood Association report said indicate that young adults today are looking for bright, well decorated, yet livable dwellings. "They want stereos and art work, but they also want space, dual purpose and time-saving items; and lots of good lighting.

"Although they're after fewer household items, they want higher quality, more durable ones. They don't want a beautiful couch that requires a protective covering. They want a beautiful couch one can use and enjoy without worrying about it. This attitude explains their preference for handmade and natural products such as stoneware, rough textured pottery, and natural woods.

"Most of all, young people seem to agree that home decor must be an expression of themselves."

Raymond E. Kassar, vice president of Burlington Industries, touched on this theme in a recent magazine article.

Divided Belgium still may result

BRUSSELS(UPI)—Bi-lingual Belgium may yet be sawn in half —in the cause of European unity.

While statesmen talk of a possible confederation of 10 sovereign European states, many Belgians speak of a confederation of 11 —including two Belgian —as a final solution to Belgium's long-standing language war.

A leading advocate of a divided Belgium —autonomous, federated, Dutch-speaking and French-speaking states —within a united Europe, is Belgium's powerful, Dutch-speaking opposition party Volksunie.

Only Solution?

"With the dissolution of national sovereignty in Europe, the only solution for Belgium is federation," Franx van der Elst, president of Volksunie, told UPI.

"Flanders (the Dutch-speaking half of Belgium) is just as important economically and socially as Denmark, so why shouldn't we have the same social and economic privileges," Van der Elst said.

Denmark is one of four nations seeking membership of the present six-nation European Common Market, on which it is hoped to build a United States of Europe.

The call for the division of Belgium in the cause of European unity is the latest battle-cry in the struggle for recognition started by a small group of Dutch-speaking Flemish intellectuals at the turn of the century when Belgium was run by French-speaking Walloons.

It follows the revision of Belgium's 140-year-old constitution recognizing the existence of the two language communities, and giving them extensive autonomous powers in cultural affairs and regional development.

The constitutional reform —which turns Belgium into a regionalized state but stops short of federation —was aimed at defusing the language war between Belgium's 5.5 million Flemings and 4 million Walloons.

But having tasted some fruits of their efforts, the hardliners on both sides of Belgium's language frontier —which splits the country geographically in half from east to west —are out for more.

"It is not a clear solution," van der Elst said of the constitutional reforms. "It is a mixture of old system with new ideas. Federation is the final solution."

Volksunie is seeking the backing of the three other Flemish political parties for proposals calling for linguistic autonomy in housing, public works, justice and local government as well as cultural and regional development.

The plan would leave the central government in charge of only foreign policy, defense, monetary affairs, and civil and criminal legislation.

"It is not our intention to split Belgium," van der Elst said. "It depends largely on whether the Walloons want to remain with us in this federation."

Pipeline endorsed

WASHINGTON (UPI) —Commerce Secretary Maurice H. Stans, declaring economic and national security advantages would outweigh possible environmental hazards, has called for early construction of the Alaska pipeline.

Stans sent a letter to Interior Secretary Robers C. B. Morton Friday saying building of the 800-mile line from Alaska's north slope to the warm water port of Valdez would insure adequate American oil supplies. He said it would reduce reliance on imports from North Africa, South America, and the Middle East.

The Interior Department has under consideration a request for a permit to build the pipeline. Construction of the line has been opposed by environmentalists who contend it would destroy the natural environment of the area.

City college fights problems

NEW YORK (UPI)—When the City University of New York (CUNY) opened its doors last September to every high school graduate in the city who wanted to come, the only thing anyone was sure of was that there would be problems.

This spring, nearly 500 administrators and faculty members from CUNY's 18 colleges across the city got together for a six-month interim conference and decided the forecasts were correct—they have problems—although the dire predictions of the critics of the open admissions policy do not seem to have come about.

Space is one problem (total CUNY enrollment is 197,664). On opening day, about 35,000 freshmen showed up at CUNY colleges, some 9,000 more than officials estimated would have been admitted under the old competitive entrance policy. Classes were held in partitioned-off auditoriums but CUNY survived and promises it will again next fall, regardless of how many students show up.

Hiring enough new faculty to handle the influx was another problem. But they were found—many of them green and just out of school themselves—but the students all had teachers.

Remedial work for the incoming students with poor high school backgrounds was a bit stickier. How much of it should be given, who was to do the teaching, and how much, if any, credit should be offered for material that should have been learned in high school?

Generally, the old guard believes college credit should be given for college-level work and nothing else.

American envoy learns art work

THE HAGUE (UPI)—If U.S. Ambassador J. William Middendorf has spare time to learn Dutch arts and crafts it is not because he is underworked as envoy to Holland.

"Official business here keeps me busy," the former Wall Street broker said in an interview. "But this was a post I asked for, so I have no complaints."

Few ambassadors can choose their own posts. But when Middendorf was offered an ambassadorship by President Nixon, in return for his work as treasurer of the Republican National Committee, he asked for Holland.

Middendorf, 44, had long been interested in many aspects of Holland: He has a collection of Rembrandts, is acknowledged as an expert on 17th century Dutch painting, and once was connected with a company importing Dutch tulips.

He said: Dutch-American relations have never been better."

Those cordial relations are at least in part a result of the ambassador's deep interest in traditional Dutch arts, an interest which has endeared him to his hosts.

One of his first steps on arrival was to take a training course at the Delft porcelian factory to learn the secrets of the traditional china-making trade.

"I wanted to be able to make the porcelain in the old way," he said. The first result was a Delft blue plate—designed by Middendorf but painted and finished by Delft factory specialist—that he presented to President Nixon.

His knowledge also comes in useful at Christmas time, when he made a limited series of 50 plates bearing a Madonna-and-Child design that he presented as gifts to friends, diplomats and the President.

Between fielding official business involving the 350-odd U.S. companies with branches in Holland, and Holland's extensive trade with the United States, Middendorf moved on to his other great hobby—stained glass windows.

"I made inquiries and found there was only one man still working in the old Gothic styte," he said.

The window maker, 70-year-old Joep Nicolas, took on Middendorf as an apprentice and put him to work, in shirtsleeves and a white apron, in his atelier at Limbourg.

"We worked together on a seven-petal rosette window for the English and American Episcopal Church in The Hague—the church I attend," said Middendorf. "It is mostly his work. I was only the helper."

But the multi-colored window, depicting stories taken from the Old and New Testaments, bears Middendorf's name as "assistant" underneath Nicolas' imprimatur.

"It was a great honor," Middendorf said. "I hope I'll be able to work some more with Nicolas."

If the ambassador can find time between his job and his family—three daughters and two sons—the White House may eventually boast a Middendorf stained glass window.

Bank discloses trust secrets

NEW YORK (UPI)—First National City Bank of New York publicized for the first time this week how it manages $11.7 billion in investments—giving the small buyer a rare opportunity to compare his holdings with those of the nation's second largest bank.

Also to the advantage of the small buyer, the bank's Investment Management Group (IMG) detailed the bank's criteria for purchasing common stock and what was looked for in companies before investing.

Citibank, with the nation's fourth largest trust account, also disclosed its portfolio of its 50 largest stock holdings in market value as of Dec. 31.

'Anatomy Of Investment'

Rep. Wright Patman, D-Tex., chairman of the House Banking and Currency Committee, and the Securities and Exchange Commission have recently suggested there be more public disclosure of large investment holdings. Patman included this in a safe banking bill he filed recently.

"We certainly were aware of those suggestions," said Edward L. Palmer, chairman of the bank's executive committee. "But we had this report in the works a long time, as you can tell by the scope of it."

The report, 32 pages long and titled "The Anatomy of an Investment," showed 58 per cent of the $11.7 billion invested by the bank was in common stock and 70 per cent of the common stock investment was in 50 companies.

International Business Machines led the list, followed by Xerox, Avon Products, General Motors and Eastman Kodak in the top five.

Thomas C. Theobald, the executive vice president in charge of the IMG, said his group believed in a small number of holdings with substantial concentrations in those companies meeting the bank's standards.

Some of the standards Theobald listed were strong potential for long term growth, management depth, strong growth trend for the company and its industry, leadership in its field, strong sales and an ability to compete in the world market.

The remaining 45 common stocks in Citibank's top 50 by rank were:

Merck & Co.; Coca-Cola; Phillips Petroleum; Standard Oil (N.J.); Sears, Roebuck & Co.; Bristol-Myers; Texaco; General Electric; ITT; Corning Glass; Three M; Eli Lilly; Atlantic Richfield; Caterpillar Tractor; Gillette; American Home Products; Texas Instruments; American Hospital Supply; Emerson Electric; GTE; E.I. Du Pont de Nemours; Louisiana Land and Exploration; S.S. Kresge; Holiday Inns; National Cash Register; Pennzoil United; First National City Corp.; Becton, Dickinson & Co.; Federated Department Stores; Westinghouse; Gulf Oil; ATT; Prentice-Hall; Southern Company; Associated Dry Goods; Union Oil (Calif.).

Key issues come to fore

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The critical issues of war, defense and desegregation dominate the Senate this week.

The House will concentrate on maritime subsidies, public works projects and pensions for retired railroad workers.

A bill to provide $1.4 billion in special funds to help schools meet the problems and expenses of integrating comes up for debate Monday in the Senate with southerners eager to make the measure apply nationwide, North and South.

Sen. John C. Stennis, D-Miss., will offer an amendment requiring absolute equal treatment of schools everywhere no matter whether their segregation sprang from laws now held unconstitutional or from housing patterns which made inner city schools black and suburban schools white.

The Senate Foreign Relations Committee, in the opening shot of the war-and-peace debate which is expected to occupy the Senate's attention for weeks this summer, begins hearings on six bills and resolutions intended to set a congressional policy on the Vietnam War.

The most controversial measure before the committee is the "Vietnam Disengagement Act," which would require the total U.S. withdrawal by the end of the year. This week's witnesses will be sponsors of the measure.

The Nixon administration's request for more money to continue building Safeguard antiballistic missile (ABM) system sites in Missouri, North Dakota and Montana comes before the Senate Armed Services Committee.

In the House, debate begins Tuesday on bills authorizing $80 million in additional subsidies for operating maritime ships and $507.7 million for subsidizing American ship construction.

On Wednesday, the House takes up a bill authorizing $5.5 billion through 1978 to extend public works, economic development and Appalachian regional development programs.

Prison guards freed

KINGSTON, Ont. (UPI) — One prisoner was killed and 11 were injured, one seriously, but five prison guards being held hostage since Wednesday were released safe and unharmed Sunday by inmates occupying the central block of the Kingston Penitentiary.

Before hurrying back to Ottawa where he was expected to tell the Commons today what happened, Solicitor-General Jean-Pierre Goyer ended a day of complete silence early Sunday evening, announcing the release of the hostages and saying the situation at the prison was stable, with authorities in complete control.

No explanation was offered as to how the prisoners were injured but official sources said, "none were injured by the authorities."

Six hostages were taken by the inmates Wednesday. One had been released Friday as a sign of good faith in mediation efforts with authorities.

Specific details of the prisoners' demands have never been made public. They were presented to Goyer in Ottawa Friday by a five-man committee of prominent citizens formed at the request of the prisoners.

Derailed freight cuts line

MILFORD, Utah (UPI) — A Union Pacific freight train derailed 13 miles north of here Sunday, spewing 28 cars loaded with a wide variety of freight over a one-block area.

There were no injuries reported the 5:30 a.m. derailment, and crews were working up to midnight to build a spur track around the wreckage.

UP officials predicted it would take a week to clear the wreckage and freight from the area. The cars were loaded with items ranging from appliances and foodstuffs to coal, steel and tankers of chemicals.

A UP foreman, Floyd Hardy, said at the scene the derailment was apparently caused by an over heated "hot box" on the train that affected the carrier's wheels.

The auxiliary track, known as a shoe-fly, was expected to be completed by midnight Sunday, and crews would then be used to begin clearing away the wreckage.

The derailment site was in a desert area in Beaver County, just about a mile off the Delta-Milford highway.

Improved Gem jails sought

BOISE (UPI) — A more active citizen concern in upgrading Idaho jail facilities and law enforcement rehabilitation programs has been recommended by the Idaho Commission on Women's Programs.

At a weekend meeting in Boise, members suggested the formation of a committee to work on the project, with emphasis on facilities for women and children.

Robert C. Arneson, director of the Law Enforcement Planning Commission, told the group, "There is a lot citizens and action groups can do." He pointed out that most jails in the state are from 50 to 100 years old. He added, "We have a real problem, especially in the area of juvenile facilities."

The commission will hold its next meeting May 22.

Musician's rites pend

MIAMI (UPI) — Carmen Lombardo, brother of bandleader Guy Lombardo and a composer and musician in his own right, died here late Saturday at the age of 67.

Date of the funeral has not been set, but services will be held at Freeport, N. Y., on Long Island.

Lombardo moved here from New York last September, ending a long career with the Lombardo band, but he continued to write music until two months ago.

Marker placed

SALEM, Ore. (UPI)—A historical marker has been placed at Ft. Stevens Warrenton on the northwest Oregon coast, where a shell fired from a Japanese submarine struck on June 21, 1942. Ft. Stevens was the only U.S. military installation on U.S. soil to come under fire in World War II, and the first post attack since 1812.

Humorist stricken

BALTIMORE (UPI) —Humorist Ogden Nash was critically ill in a hospital here today.

Nash, 68, was admitted to Union Memorial Hospital March 13, it was learned Sunday, for treatment of an illness hospital officials would not disclose. They said the writer's family had requested no information be released.

Nash had been in fair condition earlier Sunday, but he deteriorated in the afternoon, a hospital spokesman said.

Born in Rye, N.Y., Nash attended Harvard for one year. He left in 1921 and quickly became famous as a facile writer of light, humorous verse.

Demos nominate Evers

JACKSON, Miss. (UPI)—Civil Rights Leader Charles Evers, vowing to make Mississippi a model for the American dream, launched his campaign Sunday as the first black candidate for governor in modern Mississippi history.

Evers, the only Black mayor of a biracial town in the state, was unanimously nominated to enter the 1971 gubernatorial campaign at a statewide political rally sponsored by Mississippi's biracial "loyalist" Democrats.

"I am more than honored that you care enough to elect me as your candidate for governor in 1971," he told the cheering crowd. "I will do everything in my power to make this state the kind of place America should be."

A predominantly black crowd of more than 2,500 persons jammed into College Park Auditorium, adjacent to Jackson State College, for the nominating convention.

The meeting represented the start of a bid by blacks to win state and county offices in this year's elections. Loyalist leaders predicted more than 150 Negroes would be running for such posts as sheriff, county supervisor, constable and the state legislature.

Aaron Henry of Clarksdale, chairman of the loyalist group, accepted a nomination to run for the State House of Representatives. Henry, who was nominated by Evers and white newspaper editor Hodding Carter III of Greenville, has served for years as state president of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People (NAACP).

GOP chief hits Demos' tactics

WILLIAMSBURG, Va. (UPI) —Republican National Chairman Robert J. Dole accused Sen. Edmund S. Muskie Sunday of using false information in a deliberate effort to damage the FBI.

He made the charge in a statement released at the semi-annual meeting of the Republican Governors Association as part of a general indictment of tactics used by Democratic presidential prospects.

Dole, a Kansas Senator, bore in on Muskie, a Maine senator and a front-running prospect for the Democratic presidential nomination, for quoting an FBI report mentioning Muskie's presence at an Earth Day rally last year.

Calling the report valid, Dole said it was a legitimate report on an investigative assignment. "It was, of course, not intended for public distribution and basically making it public can only hurt the FBI and the job it has done," Dole said. "I must assume then that was the senator's purpose, although it is difficult to understand."

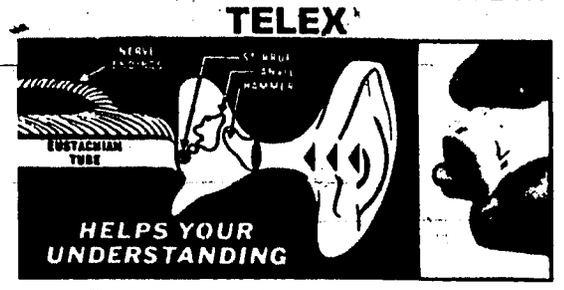

He said he was sure Muskie did not want to hamstring Internal security operations but that "his conscious effort to destroy the credibility of the FBI and the confidence of the American people in that organization point in that direction."

Nineteen of the 21 Republican state governors and three of the four territorial governors are planning to attend the session in this reconstructed capital of Colonial Virginia, which will be addressed by President Nixon Monday.

At a news conference, host Gov. A. Linwood Holton gave a negative answer when asked if the governors meeting would be primarily involved with political fence-mending, although he said politics always came up. He said the Democrats would be more involved in politics for the coming year —over the choice of a presidential nominee —and that the GOP already had "an unbeatable team" for 1972.

Holton said he saw no reason for this conference to take any formal stance on Vietnam or the dispute over the FBI.

Veteran hitchhiker describes perils of road

A Hitchhiker's Tips for Young People Hitting the High Road

EDITOR'S NOTE: Most authorities —and practically all parents —issue stern warnings against hitchhiking and its perils. But the warnings haven't stopped thousands of young people, hippie types and otherwise, from taking to the nation's highways as a mode of cheap travel. Spring and summer bring them out in great droves.

This article is published for those who, despite warnings, are now on the road, or planning to be in coming weeks or months. The writer is himself a veteran of the road and speaks from experience. He is 28 years old, a Navy veteran, has had two years of college and, as he puts it himself, sports "fairly long hair." Having long hair, as he notes in his article, can of itself be one of the perils a hitchhiker faces.

By DALE R. ARCHIBALD

It's spring, and the travel bug that has been hibernating all winter in the soles of your feet starts tickling like mad.

You're short on money, but you'll hitch. After all, you've never been hassled. Besides, you're cool enough to handle anything that comes up, right?

That's a decision more and more young people are making every year, despite all the warnings. The warnings are valid. You probably know that. But it's a cheap way to travel, there's excitement in being on your own —and who pays attention to the 'establishment' anyhow?

Well, if I can't persuade you not to try it, I can perhaps give some tips that I hope may make it easier and safer for you.

Most important: Never travel alone. Have a good partner along, one who isn't a complainer, who's self-sufficient. And always work as a team.

Start out with some money, and carry most of it in traveler's checks. A personal or business check is often impossible to cash, and if you need the music on a weekend, when banks aren't open, or you come into a small town, broke, after the banks close ... you have a problem. Also, leave some money at home, and if needed, have it wired via Western Union. Sometimes the local traveler's aid will even give you a dollar or two (but don't count on it).

The more identification you have, the better. A driver's license, draft card, Social Security card, letter from your parents, etc. Here again, traveler's aid will sometimes give you an I.D. of some kind.

Carry some kind of back pack, rather than a suitcase. You won't need to be too conscious of weight, unless you plan to camp out or walk a lot. In towns, you can rent lockers at bus terminals, or the Y, and leave most of it there.

Army surplus ponchos are worth their weight in gold. Singly, they give you protection against rain or snow, or they can be used as a groundcloth. Two of them, snapped together, can be set up as a tent (although it's a good idea to carry some light nylon line to be used with the ponchos).

Another item that's worthwhile carrying is some emergency food. One good one is a combination of peanuts and raisins. It's cheap, nutritious, and very filling.

Wear good, heavy shoes or boots, with a lighter pair in your pack.

If you have any kind of marketable talent, such as painting, drawing, or carving, you may be able to sell some of your work to keep going. It's better than panhandling.

So you're ready to start. Try to plan your trip so that you have plenty of time. Try to get into cities early, so that by checking at the colleges and universities, or at the switchboards and head shops, you can find a free place to sleep (and often eat). Sororities and fraternities, churches, missions, convents, jails; all are a pretty fair bet. Don't travel at night unless you absolutely must, but never on Friday or Saturday nights, late, when people are boozed up.

Stay out of strange bars, and bad areas of town. If you ask, often a driver will go out of his way to drop you in a safer place. However, if you get stranded in a bad area, late, be friendly, but cool, and get out fast.

Some other tips are: Always be friendly; always turn the other cheek; keep your sense of humor; always be properly grateful, and nevery pushy.

Stay on the main roads. Interstates are the best bets for distance, but stay on the on-ramps. You'll get arrested if you venture onto the interstate itself. Let whoever's the better talker sit in front (the conversation's your payment for the ride); don't argue with the driver about anything; don't get into a car if you're at all suspicious, as when it comes back a second time, or the driver acts strange or drunk; VW drivers have a reputation among young hikers as being the most stable drivers (not, though, necessarily the best drivers); have a sign, if possible; never travel in more than twos.

The following is from rumor and observation, but here it is, for what-it's worth:

The West: Pretty safe. At least the majority of people aren't overtly hostile. Don't go on the freeways in California.

The Midwest: There's a rumor that a longhair got badly cut up in a bar in Rapid City, S.D.; that bars in Wyoming give free drinks for a longhair's scalp, and that Kansas City, Mo., is definitely a city not to be caught grubbing in.

Mountain states: There is no hitchhiking in Colorado. You could get 10 days for the first offense. Also, if a driver stops for you, he can be fined.

The Southwest: There is a rumor that Flagstaff, Ariz., police will arrest you if you walk through the town, hitching.

Canada: Beautiful country, and friendly people.

Mexico: Any woman who hitchhikes is automatically classed a prostitute, and the truck drivers are reported to be very rough on girls.

Well, I hope this helps you have a safe trip. Go into your trip with misgivings, and you'll be better prepared to have a good time when nothing goes wrong. Or if something should happen, you might be able to handle it. Keep your eyes and your mind open. You'll meet some nice people, and see some sights from a different angle. As, for instance, Mason City, Iowa's Greek-columned bathrooms in their downtown park. They double as fall-out shelters.

You'll meet 40-year-old hippies, salesmen, artists, freaks and straight people. The majority of them will be nice, friendly people, but not all of them—and it's the unfriendless you've got to look out for.

Medical story

LOS ANGELES (UPI)—A Municipal Court jury didn't go for the story of Frank Hevesy, 53, that he could cure an ulcer and a weight problem by hypnotic means.

It convicted him of practicing medicine without a license after a state undercover agent testified Hevesey told her he could cure her ulcer and reduce her weight and also could cure cancer, heart disease and even perform abortions by hypnotic means.

Special knobs

SALEM, Ore. (UPI)—Ninety sets of special door knobs, each bearing an imprint of the Oregon state seal, have been purchased at a cost of $75 a set for a portion of the State Capitol Building which has been remodeled. The knobs had to be specially cast to match the original doorknobs in the 35-year-old Capitol Building.

Clergy turning to 'tent making'

By LOUIS CASSELS
UPI Religion Writer

Unwilling to abandon the Christian ministry, but unable to make a living at it, thousands of ordained clergymen are turning to what they call "tent-making."

Tent-making is a metaphorical term for any kind of secular employment that enables a man to support himself and his family while continuing to function, for little or no pay, as a minister.

The term and the practice go all the way back to the apostle Paul. The great missionary of the early church supported himself and financed his extensive travels by working at the trade of tentmaker.

No one knows how many "tent-makers" there are today, but available evidence suggests the number is substantial. A recent survey indicated that up to 2,000 of the 9,000 active priests of the Episcopal church earn more than half of their total income from secular jobs.

Men are driven into tent-making either because their clerical salaries are too low to support their families—a very common situation in nearly all denominations — or because their denominations have more qualified clergy seeking work than they have salaried jobs to offer them. This situation exists in some of the major Protestant bodies, such as the Episcopal and United Presbyterian Churches, while others, such as the Southern Baptist Convention and the Disciples of Christ, report continuing shortages of clergy.

The Rev. James L. Lowery Jr. of Boston is an Episcopal priest who serves as vice president of Human Resource Developers Inc., a private corporation that assists clergymen and others in finding suitable alternative careers.

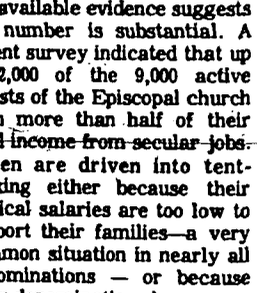

On the basis of his experience and observations, he divides tent-making ministers into several different types.

First and probably most common is the man who has a full-time job as pastor of a church, but has to take another job on the side to keep the family budget in balance. These moonlighting clergy seem to wind up in a fantastic variety of secular occupations. An Episcopal rector in Washington, D.C. works every Monday (his day off) as an administrative assistant to a congressman. A Baptist pastor in the Midwest drives a school bus on weekdays.

Other parsons are supplementing their income by working part-time as labor arbitrators, marriage counselors, teachers, or social workers. At least one, known to Father Lowery, is an expert tax consultant.

A second type earns all of his income from a secular occupation, but volunteers for evening and weekend service as an unpaid minister or assistant minister. A world-famous nuclear physicist at Oak Ridge, Tenn., dons the surplice of an Episcopal priest every Sunday —and writes notable books of theology to boot. A California physician heals people physically during the week—and charges fees for it—and ministers to spiritual ills on weekends, for free.

Finally, there is the "worker-Priest" who earns his living in a secular job—and looks upon that job as his field of Christian ministry. Some of them are in teaching or medicine. A growing number are working in the communications media. They differ from the other two types in that they are not on the staffs of churches, either as paid, underpaid or unpaid employes.

Bull market express roars ahead amid recovery signs

NEW YORK (UPI) — The bull market express roared on in heavy trading on the New York Stock Exchange last week in the wake of fresh signs the economy is recovering and the sudden thaw in Sino-American relations.

President Nixon announced a broad relaxation of the embargo that has barred direct U.S. trade with Red China for 21 years. The announcement came after premier Chou En-Lai told a visiting American table tennis team their trip to Communist China means "a new page" in relations with the United States.

A major item on the economic scene was a Commerce Department report that the nation's gross national product rose $28.5 billion in the first quarter, the biggest quarterly increase ever. Officials in Washington hailed the news as solid evidence of recovery from last year's recession.

The Dow Jones blue chip barometer climbed 19.82 to 940.21, its best closing since it finished at 946.94 on May 29, 1969. Standard & Poor's 500 stock index picked up 1.39 to 103.49, while the NYSE common stock indes registered a gain of 0.73 to 57.06.

Advances outscored declines, 1,006 to 677 among 1,842 issues crossing the tape. There were 466 new highs set, 44 new lows.

Volume for the five days aggregated 102,896,466 shares, up from 75,886,690 shares a week earlier, and also considerably above the 50,321,640 shares traded during the year ago period.

"Thawing Sino-American relations is one of the most constructive things Wall Street has seen in a long time," declared Robert Johnson, director of research for Paine, Webber, Jackson & Curtis.

Johnson believes this will affect military judgements yet to be made by the North Vietnamese. He said he thinks "it will be easier for President Nixon to wind down the war and bring it to a conclusion along the lines he has been suggesting."

Monte Gordon of Bache & Co. said the China development "helps market psychology simply because it contributes to the feeling that our military posture in Asia can be reduced."

Turning to the economic situation at home, Gordon said while recovery will be slow, "it will begin to take a definite step forward in the third and fourth quarter."

Albert H. Cox, Jr., chief economist for Lionel D. Edie & Co., Inc., said the $28.5 billion rise in gross national product "is definite evidence that a solid recovery has begun."

He said "The real problem is when to cut back on things that are stimulating the economy because so much fuel has been provided — in terms of a big budget deficit, high federal spending, and lower interest rates — that it could bring a resurgence of inflation which the economy can't stand right now."

Philip Clark, a general partner of Burnham & Co. and chairman of its investment committee, said Nixon's economic game plan, which he believes will have the economy moving up in 1971 and 1972," has given a floor to the stock market."

Alan R. Shaw, vice president and director of market research for Harris, Upham & Co., said strength in the blue chips and some better than expected first quarter earnings, such as Westinghouse, has encouraged investors to commit more money to the stock market.

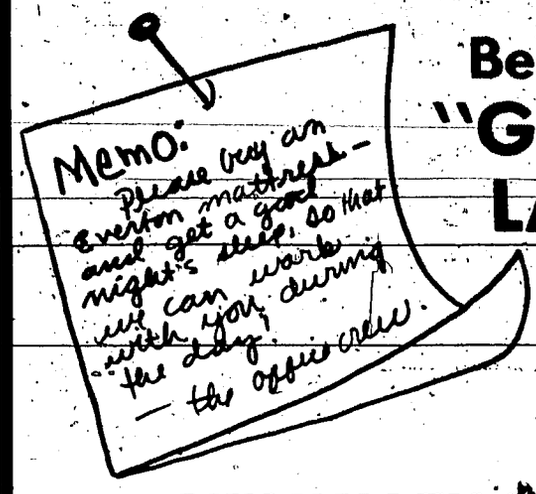

Business Week magazine claimed the sharp decline in corporate profits during the 1970 recession was effectively checked in the first quarter of this year, judging from early first quarter corporate returns.

Other encouraging news that flowed in this week included record early April car sales, higher retail sales, a small rise in industrial production last month, and a Commerce Department report that personal income of Americans increased at an annual rate of $5.9 billion last month, about twice as much as in February.

Airlines were among the week's best performers following approval from the Civil Aeronautics Board of a two-step fare increase on airline coach flights ranging up to 9 per cent.

Under the CAB order the airlines received an immediate 6 per cent fare hike. It also gave tentative approval to another 3 per cent boost in 50 days.

Other stock groups, including steels, department stores, chemicals, and oils, also attracted good demand. Electronics and rails swung in both directions, and aircrafts generally pointed higher.

SEAMAN JOHN R. GINES

JEROME — John R. Gines, son of Mr. and Mrs. Evan T. Gines, Jerome, has graduated from basic training in San Diego, Calif., and will begin serving aboard the U.S.S. Dixon for his first tour of duty, according to his parents.

He is a 1970 graduate of Highland High School in Pocatello and is currently home on leave.

SHOSHONE — Pvt. Danny Chadwick is attending a language school in the Air Force at Monterey, Calif. He will be there for a year. His wife, the former Maureen Murphy, plans to join him as soon as school is out.

RICHFIELD — Adj. 3 Jack Riley has returned home after serving three years in the Navy. He was stationed in Viet Nam the past two years with 17 months at Vung Tua at an Army air field. He attended jet mechanic school in Memphis, Tenn. prior to Navy service. He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Donald Riley, Richfield.

RICHFIELD — Lt. Larry Deeds has received his discharge at Long Beach, Calif., after serving two years in the Navy. He served on the USS Lang the past year. Before entering the service he graduated from the University of Idaho with a master's degree in mechanical engineering. He is a son of Mr. and Mrs. Lyle Deeds, Richfield.

RICHFIELD — Eng. 2-C Gaylan Swainston has been presented the Navy Achievement medal for proficient achievement while serving in Viet Nam from March to November of 1970.

The citation credits Swainston for taking part in 150 combat patrols and engaging the enemy three times. He served on an armored troop carrier, boarded and searched numerous junks and sampans, served with friendly forces in hostile territory, and provided fire support for beseiged units and outposts.

In Operation Breezy Cove his technical knowledge and long hours of hard work were directly responsible for the constant state of readiness of his river assault craft waterborne guard post on the Ong Doc River. March 28, 1970, his craft came under heavy enemy fire causing Petty Officer Swainston to react immediately to unleash devastating accurate barrage of fire into the enemy positions until all hostile fire was suppressed. His devotion to duty and professionalism is in keeping with the highest tradition of the United States Navy services," the citation reads. It was signed by Vice Admiral J.H. King, of the Navy in Viet Nam.

Cow complaint

NEW YORK (UPI)—Some dairy cattle will just as soon eat the baling wire as the hay it bales. When they do, it's possible they'll become victims of Hardware Disease, resulting in reduced milk production and even death to the animal. Most recent solution to the problem is wire replacement by a twine made from plastic, say Kodak engineers.

In the old days people went to market with a few chickens and several dozen eggs.

Now they don't.

Bartering farm produce gave way to coins and printed money. Then came checkbooks.

And today there's BankAmericard® — a most convenient form of money. With BankAmericard you can buy when the price is right and pay at a more convenient time.

Because BankAmericard gives you an option of when to pay. You can either pay the full amount shown on your monthly statement. Or, you can automatically extend your payments simply by paying the minimum amount shown.

The point is you decide which method makes most sense for your particular needs. Next time you leave the house to go shopping, take along your BankAmericard. It's the money that makes shopping and paying more convenient.

Think of it as money.

Market Review

NEW YORK (UPI)—The stock market held firm in heavy turnover as trading turned the halfway mark Monday.

Advances topped declines by 250 issues, while the Doe Jones industrial average showed a gain of 6.95 at 947.16. Standard & Poor's 500 stock index moved up 0.51 at 104.00.

A three-hour volume of 11,490,000 shares compared with 11,750,000 shares traded at a comparable period last Friday.

The better tone was attributed to spreading optimism about the economy. Among the factors encouraging traders were rising automobile sales, the substantial increase in gross national product for the first quarter, and a good gain in March housing starts.

Heavily traded issues included Arien Realty & Development up ¼ on 305,800 shares, Ampex Corp. down ¾ on 197,300 shares, CPC International ⅛ higher on 180,300 shares, Ranco off ⅝ on 166,800 shares, Whittaker Corp. ½ lower on 141,600 shares, International Telephone up ⅞ on 138,600 shares, and Chrysler also ⅞ higher on 113,400 shares.

Chrysler reported a $10.8 million profit for the first quarter against a loss during the yearago period.

Less active IBM and Polaroid rose 2 or better, while Walt Disney climbed 4¾. Honeywell, however, fell 4⅝, and Memorex and Parker Pen lost a point or more.

Partly cloudy becoming fair this afternoon and tonight. Increasing cloudiness Tuesday. Warmer days. Highs Tuesday mid 60s. Lows tonight 25 to 35. Probability of measurable precipitation 10 per cent tomorrow.

Camas Prairie, Hailey and lower Wood River Valley:

Partly cloudy becoming fair this afternoon and tonight. Increasing cloudiness Tuesday. Warmer days. Highs Tuesday lower 60s. Lows tonight low 20s.

Synopsis:

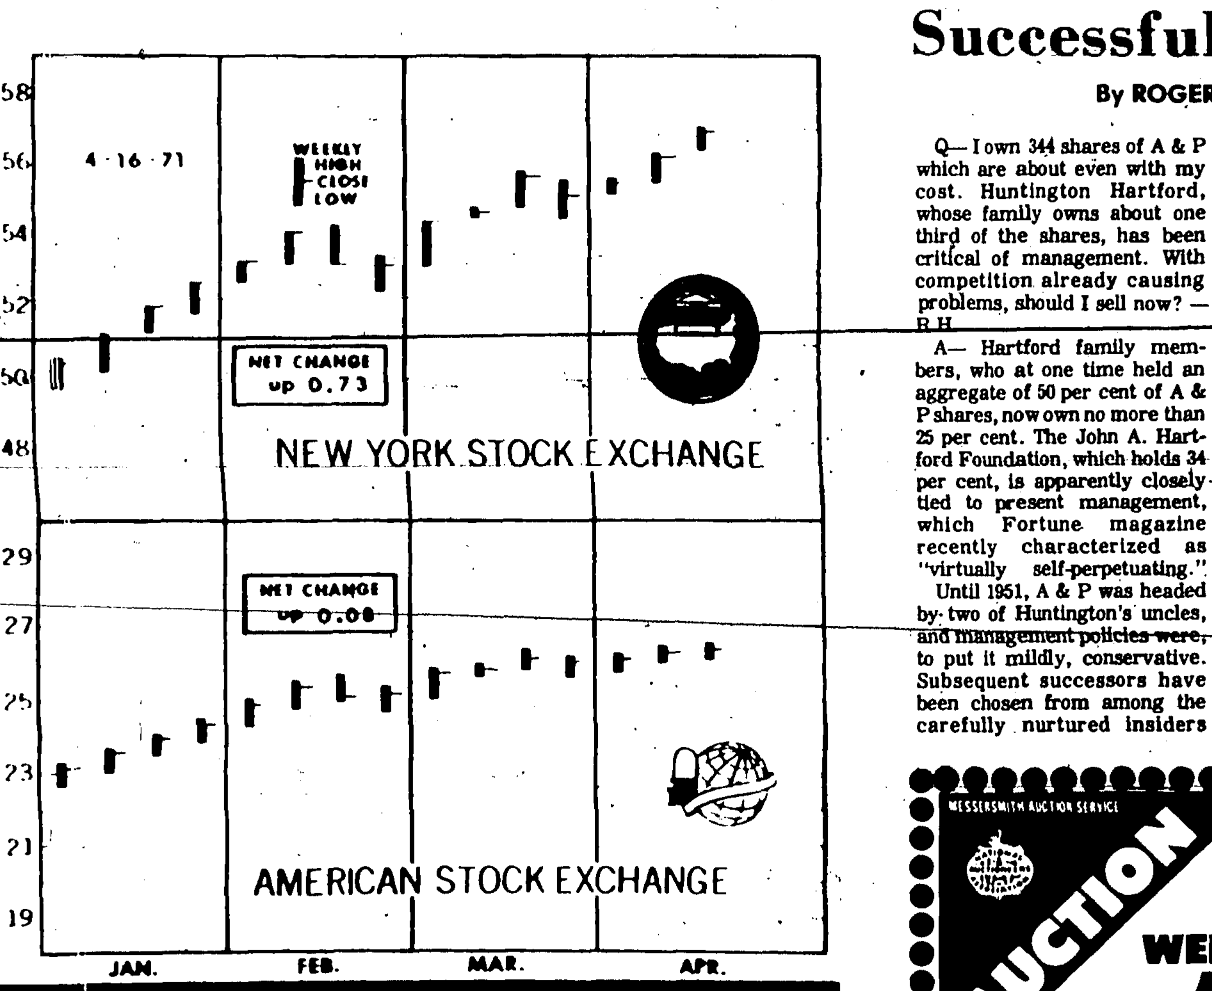

Weak high pressure is building over the intermountain region allowing fair skies to prevail over most of eastern Oregon and southern Idaho. Some cloudiness and also winds are being observed in extreme southern and southeastern Idaho and a few showers are falling in those areas.

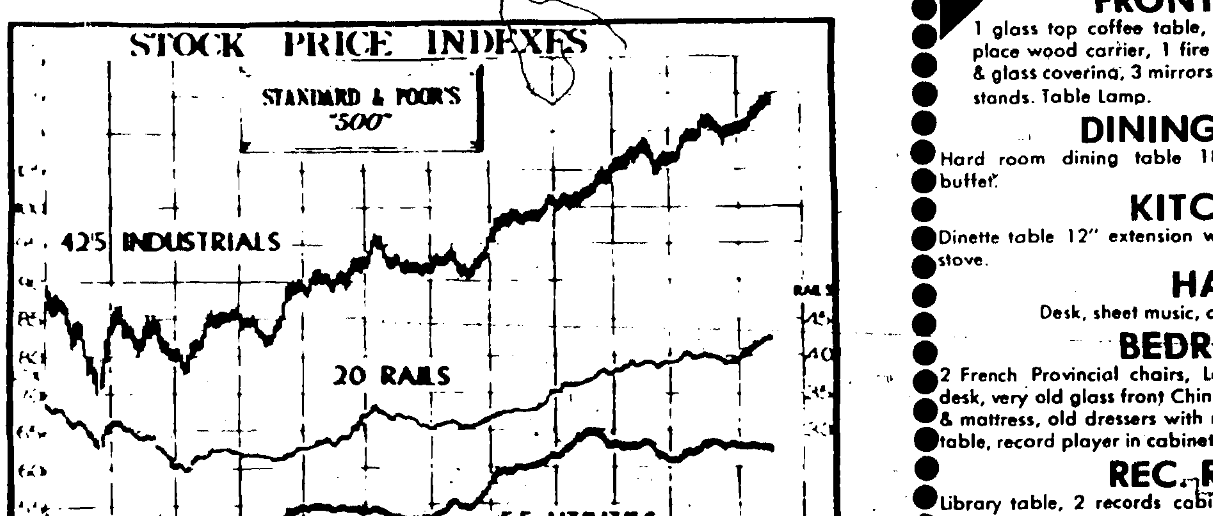

Low temperatures this morning were mostly in the 30s with colder readings in high mountain valleys.

Fair skies will dominate the region tonight and the now cloudy areas will become partly cloudy by this evening. Afternoon temperatures are warmer ranging from 55 to 65 degrees in southwestern Idaho to 50 to 60 in the southeast portion. Lows tonight will drop to or below freezing in many areas under the clear skies and light winds. High temperatures on Tuesday will again be warmer but cloudiness will increase ahead of a weak cold front approaching from the west.

By ROGER E. SPEAR

Q— I own 344 shares of A & P which are about even with my cost. Huntington Hartford, whose family owns about one third of the shares, has been critical of management. With competition already causing problems, should I sell now? — R.H.

A— Hartford family members, who at one time held an aggregate of 50 per cent of A & P shares, now own no more than 25 per cent. The John A. Hartford Foundation, which holds 34 per cent, is apparently closely tied to present management, which Fortune magazine recently characterized as "virtually self-perpetuating."

Until 1951, A & P was headed by two of Huntington's uncles, and management policies were, to put it mildly, conservative. Subsequent successors have been chosen from among the carefully nurtured insiders group whose policies are only slightly more innovative.

A & P sales have inched ahead 10 per cent in the last decade, while closest competitor — Safeway — has almost doubled its volume and with a consistently better margin of profit. Operating almost twice as many outlets as Safeway, A & P generates only $1.26 million sales per outlet compared with $1.79 million for its competitor.

Discounting, entered into only recently, is still limited, with 225 or less than 5 per cent of stores operated on that basis. Management is now committed to closing out older marginal units and opening substantially larger stores in more productive locations. Shares are of interest only for the conservative income investor.

Wall Street Chatter

NEW YORK (UPI)—The proposed Treasury bond offering will "cause a significant" reaction in stock prices, according to Hoppin, Watson & Co. "With long-term, high-grade utility bonds selling on a 7.50 per cent yield basis, a high-yield ten year Treasury issue could create quite a sensation," the company said. The firm feels blue-chip averages are ripe for a reaction and says "the expected Treasury offering could well serve as the excuse."

The "churning" high volume, the uplift in short-term interest rates and the "dormant" bond market all are cause for alarm, according to Spear & Staff, Inc. However Spear says it would not fight "the clean-cut bullish trend" and urges investment in "concept, glamour and quality OTC equities."

"A correction probably will come as soon as we all stop looking for one," according to W. E. Hutton & Co. The company said much of what the optimists "expect already has been discounted" and it predicted stock will "be lower when business is . . . better and when earnings have begun to rise."

Jerusalem agreed point

JERUSALEM (UPI)—When an Israeli cabinet minister doodles nowadays, he is probably drawing maps. Each has his own ideas of Israel's final peace border. But one point is common to all—Jerusalem, whole and undivided, lies firmly within the frontiers of the state of Israel.

The fact is, recent reminders that the status of Jerusalem is subject to a United Nations resolution calling for its internationalization have, if anything, given impetus to Israeli plans for so hedging the city about with Jewish settlements that re-division would be physically impossible.

External pressure has also had the effect of virtually stifling a bitter clash between the city's ebullient Jewish Mayor Teddy Kollek and the housing miniser, Zeiv Sharef, over the character of the development planned by the ministry for the outskirts of Jerusalem.

Had it not been for outside pressures their clash of views might have halted plans for building in former Jordan-held areas of Jerusalem at least temporarily. But the noises from abroad, including Washington, calling into question Israel's rights in the whole of Jerusalem brought a switch in the mayor's opposition.

Altogether 3,000 acres of land have been expropriated in and around the city to cater for municipal and government development plans. The Israelis claim — and no one has factually disputed it — that they have excluded all sites inhabited by Arabs, used by them for agricultural purposes or owned by Moslem religious foundations. They have also left untouched Christian church property. The only people to be physically affected are 600 Jews who will be rehoused.

Internal controversy is something both mayor and minister are willing to accept. It is Israel's exercise of its hegemony over all Jerusalem which rouses their fire. After all, they ask with some justice, "Whoever raised a voice in protest against Jordan's annexation of East Jerusalem including the Old Walled City sacred to three faiths? Why pick on us?"

4-H leaders cited

RUPERT — Minidoka County 4-H Club leaders were told during the annual awards dinner that more rural residents are moving into cities and it is important to reach all youth, city and rural, through 4-H programs.

Blaine Linford, Twin Falls, district extension supervisor, also said a 4-H investment helps the youth and benefits the entire community and country.

Preparing leaders through youth leadership was emphasized throughout the dinner, sponsored by the Sears Roebuck Foundation.

For years the 4-H program has been geared toward the youth having animals, but today the program includes training for city youth and this keeps them off the street, Linford stated. Growth and development provides all 4-H members with an interest of the world around us.

"Our youth are our future leaders, give them a chance to become leaders, they have good ideas; help them develope leadership by developing leadership in ourselves," stated Linford.

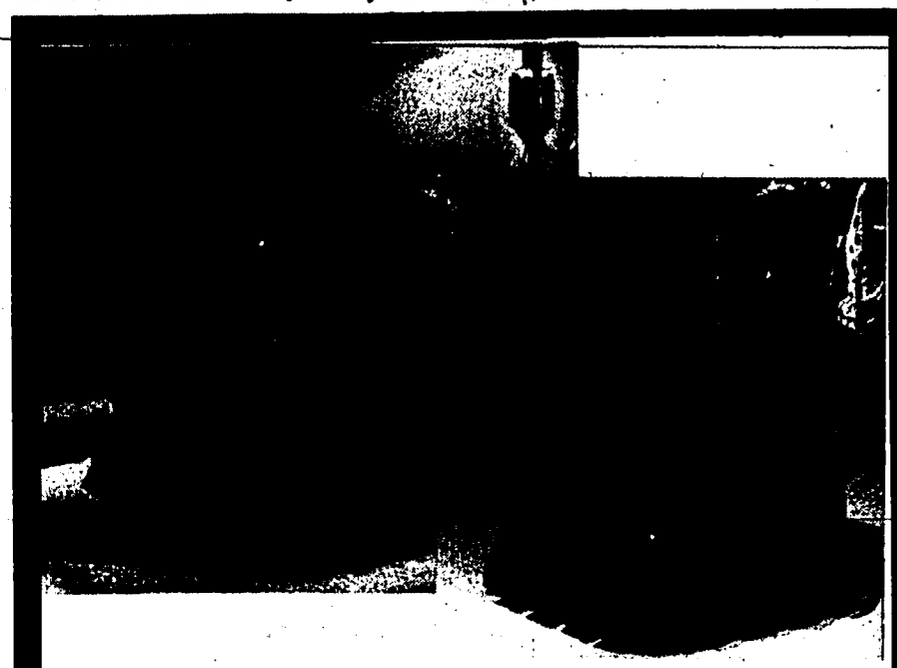

Burt Van Every, former county commissioner, was honored for being instrumental in building the county fair from scratch. He served 12 years as county commissioner.

Wilfred Gebauer, president of the Minidoka County 4-H Leaders Association presented Van Every with a special plaque for his many years of service to 4-H and the community.

Jeanne Gresenti received the annual Trevino Co. scholarship. Nancy Hoebelheinrich, Teresa Couch and Vernon Gebauer received the engraved wrist watches, from First Security Bank.

Mrs. Jean Harrison received a 10 year service pin from Lamont Smith, county agent. Other receiving service pins were Mrs. Veda Shufeldt, Mrs. Ruby Hutchinson and Lyle Barton, all five years.

Mrs. Venice Pedersen reported on the Western Leaders Forum held recently in Reno, Nev., sponsored by J.C. Penney Co. There are 50,000 4-H leaders in the United States which donates about 8 million hours to leadership. In 1970 there were 41 million youth in the U.S. with about 46 million expected by 1980, only one out of every three are connected with any youth organization, and only one out of every three will be leaders, Mrs. Pedersen said.

'Machine' products

SCRUBWOMEN, products of the "mad scientist's" man-making machine at the Scout-O-Rama activities Saturday in Rupert, are shown dancing. This "machine" and its products were one of several scenes at the annual event.

Murphy lauds group

BURLEY — Lt. Gov. Jack Murphy, Boise was the guest speaker for the annual Boss' Night dinner Saturday at Ponderosa Inn by Burley Credit Women's Club International.

"The third force in our country is local organizations with the ability to solve their own local problems," stated Jack Murphy. "This local organization has a free society, prosperous society, and progressive society," he added.

"The last generation has forgotten the third force; people are unmanageable except at the federal level; unrest in America is a movement of our youth to establish tribal units which dates back in history," Murphy stated. "Our youth do not believe in the establishment. You and I are the establishment, and it has been the establishment that started all wars," said Murphy.

"People are banding together, working together, and solving their own problems, putting the third force into action. We do have problems in Idaho and it is time you and I get involved in helping each other, as our grandfathers did to solve local problems."

Mrs. Dennis Critchfield, president of the Burley Credit Women's Club, conducted the meeting and Mrs. S.L. Walker, vice-president, introduced Lt. Gov. Murphy.

Mrs. Pauline Reeder gave the invocation.

The members, their husbands, the bosses and wives, and guests enjoyed a smorgasbord dinner.

A telegram was read from Sen. Frank Church, extending best wishes to the members and regrets that he was unable to attend.

Each of the members presented her boss with a humorous gift.

Education awards were presented to Ruby Edmons, Kathy Howell, Morma Lou Whipple, Juanita Kerbs, Reva Moultre and Ruth Warr, all one year; Donna Brown, Sondra Critchfield, Marjorie Draper, Joan Kriegh, Pauline Reeder, Joy Rucker and Marion Walker, all two years.

ReNae Smith, three years; JoAnn Dickson, and Odean Brown, four years; Connie Ellis, five years; Betty Buttars, Virginia Rogers, both six years and Velma Jean Mabey, seven years.

Perfect attendance awards were presented to Mrs. Mabey, seven years; Mrs. Rogers, Mrs. Dickson and Mrs. Buttars all four years; Mrs. Ellis and Mrs. Brown, both three years; Mrs. Kriegh and Mrs. Critchfield, both one year.

Official speaks

Scouting skills depicted in council celebration

PAUL — A "mad scientist and his man-molding machine" depicted the growth of the Boy Scout movement in the Snake River Area Council during the annual Scout-O-Rama Saturday night at Minidoka High School.

The event celebrated the 50th Anniversary of Scouting in the nation and the Magic Valley.

The skit delineated the various ranks in Scouting and the characteristics of a good Boy Scout, and outlined the many activities of Scouts. The actors emphasized that the Scout law helps develop young men into adults of high character.

The Snake River Area Council's Scouting program was also explained in a sparkling fashion through the humor of the "mad scientist" whose machine manufactured various types of "men" on demand, but proved unable, in the end, to manufacture a "perfect man." This sort of person can be developed only through hard work and such activities as the Scout program, the skit told the audience.

One of the highlights of a boy's Scouting experiences could be the week he spends on the Mishu Trail. This week consists of Scouts hiking over 59 miles of trail through the Idaho Primitive Area, originating at the Cape Horn Scout Reservation.

In 1966 a conservation camp where the Scouts can receive training in forestry, soil and water conservation, fish and wildlife management and conservation of natural resources was added to the council's summer program.

One of the summertime activities known nationwide is the Whitewater Expedition — in which the boys and their boats cover 128 miles from Dagger Falls to the end of the Middle Fork at Shoup.

There is also an aquatic camp held each August at Camp Bradley. At this camp Scouts enjoy waterfront activities.

Scouts can also participate in the Dan Beard junior leader training program. This program lets Scouts learn the patrol system.

Camp Bradley, located on the Cape Horn Scout Reservation and situated in the heart of the Stanley Basin, is one of the outstanding Scout camps in Idaho.

Just a few of the activities included in the program at Camp Bradley are archery, riflery, camping, cooking, pioneering, rowing, canoeing, compass and orientation, physical fitness, first aid, fire building, nature lore and conservation. Some of these activities were demonstrated for the audience Saturday night.

Also, during this part of the program the Scouts demonstrated how they construct a tower. This could be described as one of the highlights of the program.

It was also pointed out that the Snake River Area Council was first in the nation last year in the percentage of boys participating in council-operated summer activities.

Scouts were also reminded to sign up now as the camps were filling up fast.

The audience was also briefly informed of the council's career explorer program. Through this program boys can find out if they really want a career in the occupation they thought they did.

At the end of the program the "mad scientist" gives up on his man-moulding machine and joins the Scouting program as a leader.

Action on annexation may be delayed again

TWIN FALLS — Action on annexation of lands south of Twin Falls along State Highway 74 will be postponed until May 3 if Twin Falls City Council members accept such a recommendation at tonight's meeting.

An ordinance to annex the lands and another establishing zones in the proposed annexation area were read for a third and final time on April 5 but action was deferred at that time until tonight's meeting.

Council members will be asked to again defer action pending further discussion of the areas recommended for annexation. Strong opposition has been voiced by residents of the west side of the highway because they feel the city cannot provide them with sewer service.

In other business tonight council officials will review cost of jail accommodations for city prisoners in the county jail and discuss establishing a policy on employe unions and place an amended ordinance on dog regulations on first reading.

An ordinance on sanitation services in the city will be discussed and the airport lease with Air West will also come up for consideration. A request to vacate a street and alley near Volco Builders Supply Inc., will be heard, and the city will hear an ordinance to repeal the no longer existing office of city police judge.

Pakistan issues strong protest following attack by Indian foes

NEW DELHI (UPI) — Radio Pakistan said today Indian troops supported by artillery attacked a Pakistani border post and that Pakistan had lodged a strong protest with the Indian government. Last week there were similar charges and protests by India.

Radio Pakistan said the alleged attack took place between Comilla and Brahmanbaria in eastern Pakistan. Brahmanbaria is in the far eastern sector of East Pakistan just across the Indian border and near the Indian border town of Agartala.

Another festering sore in Indo-Pakistan relations appeared to be developing in Calcutta where the Pakistani deputy high commissioner and 50 members of his staff renounced all ties with Pakistan and threw their support to the rebel government in East Pakistan.

Pakistan has not yet reacted to the move, but was expected to protest.

In the actual fighting the Pakistani Army appeared to be gaining the upper hand. Radio Pakistan reported army troops had moved within five miles of the Indian border near the spot where East Pakistani rebel leaders formally proclaimed their independence on Saturday.

Radio Pakistan said the troops occupied the town of Meherpur, five miles from the border. This was three to four miles from Bhaberpara, the village where the rebel proclamation was issued Saturday. The guerrilla leaders are believed to have left the area.

Radio Pakistan said troops had also taken Brahmanbaria, a subdivisional headquarters 10 miles from the border, without encountering resistance.

Relations between India and Pakistan were further strained Sunday by the defection of Pakistan's deputy high commissioner in Calcutta, who announced his allegiance to the secessionist Bangla Desh (Bengal Land) government in East Pakistan.

About 50 Bengali staff members joined Deputy High Commissioner Mohammed Hossain Ali in renouncing their ties with the Pakistan government. Hossain Ali said 30 West Pakistani staff members would be free to be repatriated by the Indian government.

Honors set by PTA

GOODING — "Dee Keller Night" will be observed by the Gooding Parent Teacher Association when it meets at 8 p.m. today at Gooding High School.

Spring clinic for Realtors charted May 25

BURLEY — The annual spring clinic will be held on May 25 at the Ponderosa Inn, Burley, reports Ray Assendrup, Jerome, president of the North Side Board of Realtors.

A registration fee of $7.50 will be charged the real estate agents and salesmen, while $10 will be charged others.

Realtor week will be observed the week of May 23-29, Assendrup said.

Champ 'poke tops riders at Portland

PORTLAND (UPI) — Defending Champion All-Around Cowboy Larry Mahan, Brooks, Ore., was the first man to stay on the bull Tony Lama in 25 tries here this weekend, and the ride gave him first prize in the bull riding at the Pacific Indoor Rodeo. Mahan took home $748 for his ride.

Police officer said recovering

RUPERT — Four persons, including a state patrolman, who were injured in a mishap Friday south of Rupert on Highway 24, were reported in good condition today at Cassia Memorial Hospital and the Minidoka Memorial Hospital.

State Patrolman Charles (Chuck) Peugh, Juan Madarietta and Stella D. Lochridge, all Rupert, are in Cassia Memorial Hospital, and Ralph Barnes, also Rupert, is in Minidoka Memorial Hospital.

Robert Nevarez, Minidoka County deputy sheriff, who investigated, said Peugh had stopped a truck driven by Madarietta and both men were standing between the patrol car and the truck when a pickup truck struck the patrol car.

Willard V. Barnes, Rupert, was driving the pickup truck. The patrol car struck both Peugh and Madarietta. Ralph Barnes and Lockridge were passengers in the pickup.

Deputy Nevarez said the patrol car's flashing red light and blinking tail lights were on at the time of the accident.

Willard Barnes, who was not hospitalized, was cited for drunken driving.

Council will open bids at Burley meeting

BURLEY — The Burley City Council will open bids on Local Improvement District No. 17 at its meeting tonight which will begin at 8 p.m. in the council chambers.

The council also will discuss the request by Trans Magic Airlines for an increase in fares.

The council will discuss whether or not the Green Acres well will be activated and connected to the city's water system.

Discussion on many other topics are also scheduled.

Missing totem pole returned following plea

TWIN FALLS — Mrs. James Vandehbark's missing totem pole is back home.

The genuine Indian item was sent her from Alaska and was to be used in the 1971 Camp Fire Girls' program. It is a highly valued keepsake. It was stolen from her home and an item in the Times-News' "Mr. Spectator" column appealed for the return.

City police were advised it was returned by two young men over the weekend and is back at the Vandenbark home in good condition.

Ho for Italy!

BABY BUNNIES, born after their mommas were captured in the Idaho desert for shipment to Italy, are pictured before their lengthy but fast journey to Sicily started last Friday. By now, they and about 500 other Idaho jackrabbits are browning under the warm Sicilian sun. The Italian firm of Nerone Battistani and Co. shipped about 10,000 Idaho rabbits to Italy for breeding and hunting purposes, and plans to buy at least 20,000 more this fall. ## Building in Ketchum to 'boom' soon

KETCHUM — Construction in Ketchum will begin to "boom" within the next few weeks, according to L.B. McCoy, Ketchum city inspector, with $1,307,475 worth of building permits issued since Jan. 1.

Most of the construction has been waiting for snow in the Wood River Valley to disappear. A major construction project soon to begin is 30 townhouse units to be built at the base of Warm Springs lift by Edelweiss Condominiums. Total construction cost will be about $300,000.

Another major project will be a three-structure multi-dwelling complex to be built by Zumwalt's at a cost of $180,300.

A restaurant and apartment complex to be built in the south portion of Ketchum will cost $172,000, McCoy said.

A Union Oil Co. service station will be built across from the Ketchum post office, with project cost estimated at $50,000.

By Oswald & James Jacoby

Jim: "Here is a hand from the magazine 'Popular Bridge' that illustrates several principles of no-trump play."

Oswald: "It starts with the hold up. South lets East hold the first heart trick, but wins the second. Then he attacks in diamonds, dummy's long suit."

Jim: "South isn't too happy with his contract, but he is going to go for nine tricks. When West plays the jack of diamonds and dummy's queen holds, South sees considerable hope."

Oswald: "He is sure of four diamond tricks at this point unless East is going through some hocus-pocus four to the king-10. Four diamonds plus two hearts and two spades brings him to eight. He needs a club trick for his contract."

Jim: "It behooves him to abandon diamonds for a moment and try for that club trick by leading a club to his king. He doesn't stick in the 10 because he needs one club trick, not two."

Oswald: "If West lets the club king hold it is up to South to go back to diamonds and his nine tricks. West probably takes the club and knocks out the last high heart. This gives South a moment of worry. He leads a diamond, covers West's king with the ace, plays a third diamond and relaxes when East has to win that trick."

PASS IT ON

by L.M. Boyd

NOT MANY PEOPLE realize you can break a rib by coughing violently. Nor do many realize more women than men do so every year .... HOW LONG does a pound and a half of coffee last around your place? No matter, merely wanted to mention it takes a coffee bush a whole year to turn out that much .... UNDER BRITISH LAW, the most a young man may be made to pay by the court for fathering an illegitimate child is the equivalent of about $6 a week.

HOW REMARKABLE the Parrot Fish! Come dark, it knits its own nightgown. As the sun goes down, this West Indian fish secretes a transparent mucous envelope that spreads out from its mouth to encase its entire body. At sunrise, it unbuttons the thing, or whatever, and goes on about its business.

IN THE WEST RESTAURANT of the world's largest hotel, the Raffis of Moscow, the quickest way for waitresses to get from the main dining hall to the kitchen is down the up escalator. And that's how they do it. Architects, please note .... "WHAT I USED to hate about a three-day weekend in the country was all the dirty clothes I had to deal with when we got home," writes a feminine homemaker in Ventura, Calif. "Fortunately, that's all over now that we're vacationing regularly at the nudist camp."

ANIMAL WORLD: No bird has more than four toes, none .... A goldfish's teeth are in its throat .... And the older the deer, the bumpier the antlers, don't forget.

This could surprise you, but cocktail gatherings wherein both men and women congregate are noiser, far noisier, than stag parties. As a rule. The Acoustical Society of America's researchers found that out. They took sound levels at various getogethers. Incidentally, they also discovered that librarians – shush! – with martini glasses in their hands are just as noisy as everybody else.

CUSTOMER SERVICE: Q. "Don't more young girls than young boys commit suicide?" A. More young girls try it. But more young boys actually go through with it .... Q. "What's your stand on sex education?" A. Strongly believe in both, sir .... Q. "Can dogs catch mumps from cows?" A. Understand it has happened.

WHEN THE WORKING MAN punches in, the time clock automatically plays a brief recorded message to him from the president of the firm. If said employee is early, the message is congratulatory. If he's just on time, it's cheery. But if he's late, it chews him out. Such a contrivance is now on the market. Should sell about as well as a guillotine, what? Wouldn't much care for that, personally.

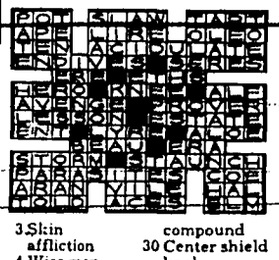

RAPID REPLY: Yes, sir, it's a fact kosher butchers have sought and got the pencilmakers to turn out a special writing instrument guaranteed free of any pork-derived products.

Gooding announces top seniors

CHERI SCANLON

KAREN JOHNSON

CINDI LACROIX

GOODING — Cheri Scanlon, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Claude Scanlon, Gooding, has been named valedictorian of the Gooding High School class of 1971.

Miss Scanlon has a 4.0 grade point average for her 4 years in high school. She has been an Honor Society member, Girls' State representative, student body treasurer, vice president of the Pep Band and a member of Ski Club.

Karen Johnson and Cindi LaCroix have been chosen co-salutatorians because of their close grade point averages. Miss Johnson obtained a 3.94.28 and Miss LaCroix a 3.94.59.

Karen is daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Duane Johnson, and has been Girls' League president, honored queen of Job's Daughters, Honor Society member and member of the Drill Team, Ski Club, French Club and Future Nurses of America.

Cindi's activities include Honor Society, French Club, FNA and senior class treasurer.

Gooding High School graduation is scheduled for May 23 at 8 p.m. at the Frahm Jr. High School gymnasium. Baccalaureate services will be at 2 p.m. the same day.

Beauty hint

HOLLYWOOD, Calif. — Well-groomed eyebrows do much to add flattering expressiveness and beauty to the eyes they frame, according to famed beauty-fashion authority Max Factor.

For the most lovely effect, they should be plucked regularly — and correctly. Begin by checking their length. Your eyebrows should start just above the inner corner of your eye and finish just beyond the outer corner. Lay a pencil against the side of your nose and into the browline. Move it across to the outer corner of your eye. Pluck excess hair that exceeds these bounds. Use tweezers carefully to avoid removing too many hairs by plucking one hair at a time. Stretch the skin between two fingers and pluck in the direction of hair growth to minimize any discomfort.

Soften the eyebrow area by first applying a soothing, penetrating cream.

Always remove hairs from underneath the brow. If long, unruly hairs mar an eyebrow's upper outline, trim the ends with small scissors. "Flat top" scissors — not pointy — are especially ideal for eye protection. To vary the shape and degree of eyebrow definition, apply eyebrow make up.

Complete schedule outlined

TWIN FALLS — A complete schedule of local events in observation of Secretaries Week, which began Sunday, has been announced by Mrs. Marjorie L. Kroush, Secretaries Week Chairman of the Twin-Ida Chapter of The National Secretaries Association (International).

"In formulating our plans, we were guided by our slogan, 'Better Secretaries Mean Better Business' and by our official NSA Motto, 'Better Learning, Better Letters, Better Living,'" said Mrs. Kroush. "We hope during Secretaries Week, which is in honor of all secretaries everywhere, to bring to the attention of the community our continued dedication to the elevation of the secretarial profession in its vital role in business, industry, education, the professions, and government."

The following are the dates, times, and events scheduled in the local observance of Secretaries Week.

A luncheon will be held at noon Tuesday at the Turf Club. A special invitation is extended to all bosses and their secretaries to attend this luncheon. Guests are welcome. Holly Houfburg will be master of ceremonies. During the luncheon, the annual scholarship award will be presented to a CSI student.

For tickets, please contact Mrs. Louise Bush, 733-3974, or Mrs. Marjorie Kroush, 733-0236.

On Secretaries Day, Wednesday, each hour from 8 a.m. to 5 p.m., one secretary will receive a corsage and her name will be announced over a local radio station. The names will be drawn from those placed in a ballot box the day of the luncheon.

Deon Pettygrove selected for July concert tour

HANSEN — Deon Pettygrove, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Pettygrove, Hansen High School junior, has been selected to participate in the "Young Americans in Concert," 1971, European Concert Tour during July. She plays the bassoon.

The students go to New Jersey, arriving June 28, where they rehearse prior to first major concert performed in New York Carnegie Hall, July 2. Their itinerary includes Washington, D. C., London, Brussels, Paris, Zurich, Innsbruck, Venice-Florence and Rome.

Deon started her band on the bassoon when in the eighth grade under the direction of Richard Youree, present band director of Hansen schools. She attended all state last year.

She was invited to participate after sending in a taped audition last December. Audition music and materials were sent to her, which deleted traveling expense and time for both the particiant and the directors of the program.

Budget breakers

WASHINGTON (UPI)—Sagging panty hose that wrinkle around the ankles and develop holes or runs are breaking the budgets and morale of millions of American girls.

Rep. Leonor K. Sullivan, D-Mo., says they are entitled to bitter complaints.

"The anguish is real, but solutions seem to be elusive," she said in a House speech. "Many women understandably believe the government should be doing more—or at least doing something—about it."

Manufacturers generally guarantee the product against runs, and it is true that few runs appear. But women who wear panty hose say that holes are fully as unsightly as runs, if not more so.

At $3.50 a pair, a woman wrote Mrs. Sullivan from Oakland, Calif., panty hose are the single most expensive article in her annual clothing budget.

Mrs. Sullivan took a hand early in the game, with a letter to the Federal Trade Commission (FTC) about a complaint she received from a college English teacher. It was the "guaranteed not to run" message which accompanied the panty hose that ptompted her to write her congresswoman, who relayed the inquiry to the FTC chairman at that time, Caspar T. Weinberger.

"Do the words constitute misleading advertising if the stockings 'guaranteed not to run' go into holes?" she asked.

She said the reply apparently amounted to, "a 'hole' is not necessarily a 'run' or vice versa," so there appeared to be no violation of the fair packing law.

Next she appealed to the National Science Foundation, asking that a study of panty hose be included among NSF's research projects. She said success in this endeavor would save money for American women and permit them to be chic when wearing panty hose.

"The NSF has not considered this matter one of the most serious confronting the scientific community," she reported. "But perhaps they have not been hearing from or listening to the right scientists. I am sure there are many women scientists who would consider this indeed a serious problem—those who wear panty hose."

Mrs. Sullivan acknowledged a suit against the manufacturers would require proof of a deliberate conspiracy by a group of firms to keep stronger materials off the market. She recommended that her irate correspondents urge manufactures to finance research on the problem.

Fashionettes

Canvas is coming along as a male fashion fabric. White, off-white, beige and tan are among the popular colors in smart jackets and slacks. Tops come in a wide assortment of lengths and models. Some are belted and some are plain. And there is a great variety of pocket treatments.

With the advent of the longer hemline, hats are back with a vengeance. The big hat, from garden-party type to rancher, is a special favorite for spring and summer and charmingly tops the new hemline.

DEVILED EGG BAKE

Preheat over to 350 degrees.

6 hard boiled eggs, shelled
¼ cup mayonnaise or salad dressing
2 teaspoons prepared mustard
¼ teaspoon salt
1 can, 5-ounces, deveined shrimp
1 can frozen shrimp soup, thawed
½ cup milk
4 cups hot cooked rice

Cut egg in half crosswise, remove yolks and mash in small bowl. Blend in mayonnaise, mustard and salt. Pile back in white of eggs.

Drain shrimp and rinse. Combine shrimp with soup and milk in medium-sized saucepan. Heat slowly, stirring several times, just until bubbly.

Spoon rice into a six-cup shallow baking dish. Arrange stuffed eggs in rows on top. Spoon shrimp sauce over all. Bake in moderate oven, 350 degrees, for 15 minutes or until bubbly hot. Garnish with parsley if desired.

Boutiques feature elaborate variety

NEW YORK (UPI)—To the dictionary a boutique is a small specialty shop dealing in ladies' fashionable ready-to-wear. To the young it is where you can buy an artfully decorated pair of used $7 Levi's for $200. To the men's clothing industry is may mean salvation.

One of the high priests of the boutique business is Bernard (Barry) Van Lenten, 29, a curly haired Rutgers graduate who sometimes attends cocktail parties wearing knickers and laced up knee boots and maybe even a fancy poncho dripping with suede fringe.

This is not considered remotely eccentric in the boutique business, since the current issue of Boutique Magazine shows such things as voodoo pendants, leaded glass breast plates, screen printed hot pants, Buck Rogers shirts, a crocheted tunic for a man ($375) and a wraparound garment pieced together with leather scraps.

Van Lenten is editor of Boutique, a slick-paper magazine devoted entirely to the boutique business and which he describes as a new concept that has no relation to trade magazines. Trade magazines, he says, are 10 years behind the times whereas his publication is "outrageous" to cope with the outrageous boutique fashions.

Van Lenten thinks the boutique business may be the salvation of the men's tailored clothing business which has not improved its sales in the past two decades—suit sales actually dropped sharply last year despite the population growth.

"The tailored clothing industry is not dying," he said. "It is just feeling the effects of obsolescence. As a market it is not fulfilling the needs of the public in price, construction, comfort and looks. When a certain combination of things happen, tailored clothing will experience a new birth.

"There is something wrong with a suit as we know it. To begin with, a tailored suit is one of the most expensive items in an economy that is feeling the pinch of dollars. A suit as a concept is not wrong, just the expression.

"Look what a new concept will do—a line of unconstructed suits by Ralph Lauren sold out practically overnight at a New York department store at $135 each."

And, he said, if clothing manufacturers change their concepts by adapting ideas from the boutiques, sales will climb. Some have already started to copy or adapt boutique concepts.

Van Lenten says the advancement of the boutique means "the fashion business as we know it has become meaningless."

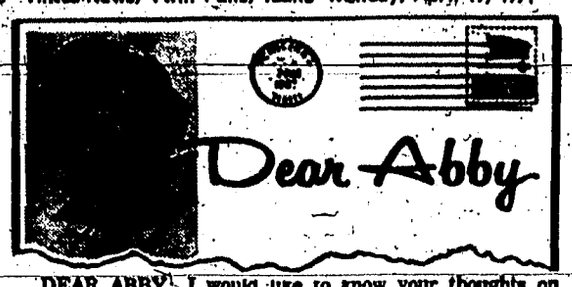

"The purchase at the boutique level is motivated by impulse and not by a desire to get into the latest fashion," he said. The stuff in boutiques is youth oriented and anti-fashion. There are sleazy, chopped off, patched up threadbare vlue-jeans. This is not fashion. But what they buy has to be appealing in the eye of the beholder.

"Old concepts of marketing have vanished. The Billingsley Boutique had a pair of jeans that a girl there patched and decorated with shamskin, leather, suede and cloth stripes in what she called an animal kingdom look. It was outrageous. The base was a $7 second hand pair of Levi's and she sold them for $200."

Love story

CALL IT PUPPY love forever if you will as Tom Ingram, who will be 101 in September, busses his wife of 57 years. She is heading for the 96th year milestone in the same month. The pair married late in life, he was 44 and she 39. They have no children and are patients at a nursing home in Covington, Ky. They are ambulant only with difficulty, but the love lingers as Tom reaches out from his bed to pat the hand of his wife, Eva, and she to hold his. (UPI)

DEAR ABBY: I would like to know your thoughts on entertaining the "boss." Is this still being done as a means of advancement? I have never been able to issue such invitations, and my husband agrees that we shouldn't. [Of course, we never "advanced" very far, either.]

We would reciprocate an invitation should we receive one from someone higher up in my husband's organization, but is it our place to make the first move? Does a boss expect this? Or would he consider it an attempt at making "brownie points"?

Ours is a common problem, yet I have never seen it discussed in your column.—QUANDARY

DEAR QUANDARY: The first move should be made by the one higher up in the pecking order. Entertaining the boss is still used by some who hope it will help them at the office. But if a mediocre man is destined to meet his Waterloo, even his wife's Beef Wellington won't save him.

DEAR ABBY: I've got nothing but trouble. I married a man who is very mean when he drinks and he drinks a lot. Last year he bought a new car. He made the first payment and after that he told me if I wanted to keep the car I could take over the payments, otherwise the car could go back. Well, I took over the payments, but the car stayed in my husband's name, and he had it most of the time.

We fought all the time, and I got tired of his mean moods so I moved out on him. I was staying with friends when this wild man busted in on us, all boozed up, and started shooting up the place. He got me in the hip. The landlord heard the commotion and ran up to help me and he got shot in the head. [The landlord died three days later.]

They locked up my husband, but he is out on bond now and I haven't seen him since the court hearing three months ago.

My problem is this. Should I keep up the payments on the car? He has it, and it's still in his name. Yours truly.—GLADIOLA.

DEAR GLADIOLA: See a lawyer about transferring ownership of the car to you. And in view of your husband's criminal antics, if you don't get the car why not sue him to recover the payments you've already made, and whatever else the trigger-happy boozer has? [I have an idea he isn't going to be needing any of it for a while.]

DEAR ABBY: I am a 23-year-old unwed mother. I kept my little boy. He's nearly 2 now, and I plan to return to work soon. I know I'll be meeting lots of guys, and I'm not sure what to tell them. Should I say I'm divorced? Or should I say my husband was killed in Vietnam? Or would it be all right to tell them the truth?

Do you think they would look down on me if they krew I was an unwed mother? I'm sure other unwed mothers have the same problem. Can you help me?—WONDERING

DEAR WONDERING: First give a fellow a chance to know you before you pour out the story of your life. But when the time comes, tell the truth. The right kind of man will not hold it against you. If there's a man out there who has married an unwed mother, I'd like to have his point of view.

DEAR ABBY: I believe I can tell "HOODWINKED" how to spot a married man.

Look him up in the local City Directory! [There is one available at the Public Library.] You'd be surprised at the information listed there. Address, marital status, number of children, place of employment as well as his position with the company. If he isn't listed, that usually means he's a traveling man.

I've been married for 30 years now, and I used this directory often. If I ever went out with a married man, at least I knew what I was doing.—OPAL IN ARIZONA

What's your problem? You'll feel better if you get it off your chest. Write to ABBY, Box 69700, Los Angeles, Cal. 90069. For a personal reply enclose stamped, addressed envelope.

Littler takes Monsanto Open to break Jinx

PENSACOLA, Fla. (UPI)—Gene Littler, a cool 40-year-old Californian who won the U.S. Open 10 years ago, picked up his first victory in two years Sunday when he won the $150,000 Monsanto Open.

Littler, making his first appearance in this northwest Florida Gulf city in 12 years, shot a 4-under-par 67 in Sunday's final round for a four-day total of 8-under-par 276 and finished three strokes ahead of George Archer, who was seeking his second victory here in four years, and Pete Brown.

It was the 22nd victory for the lithe Littler since he joined the pro tour 17 years ago after winning the 1953 U.S. amateur title. The $30,000 that went with Sunday's victory pushed him past the three-quarters of a million dollar mark for his career.

Littler, who hadn't played in this tournament since 1959 "because its previously earlier date wasn't convenient for me," started the final round in a five-way tie for third place, one stroke off pace-setting Al Geiberger and Mason Rudolph.

He had three birdies and no bogeys on the front side to forge into the lead but fell a stroke behind Archer when he took a bogey at the 560-yard, par-five 14th hole. However, Archer, playing in the last twosome, two behind Littler, bogeyed both 14 and 15 so when Littler sank his birdie putt at No. 15, he went in front to stay.

The 6-foot-6 Archer, winner here in 1968 and winner of the Masters the next year, bogeyed four of his last five holes to wind up with a 70-279. Brown, who had a closing 67 for his 279 total, was previously best known here for the shot he had to play off the pro shop roof at the 18th hole a half dozen years ago.

Bob Murphy shot his fourth straight 70 for a 280 to tie second round leader Larry Wood who had a closing 71. Ron Cerrudo (69), Johnny Pott (68) and Mason Rudolph (73) were all in at 281.

Littler, a resident of La Jolla, Calif., had two 1969 victories—at Phoenix and at Greensboro—but finished no higher than second in 1970 when he turned that trick in the Masters, where he lost in a playoff to Billy Casper, and in the Phoenix Open and Colonial Invitational.

He decided to play here this year because the tournament was scheduled just one week after the Masters in Georgia and because it was his last chance to win a berth in next week's Tournament of Champions, which is being held in California.

Geiberger had a 74 Sunday for a 282 to tie John Lotz, who shot a 67, Billy Maxwell with a 73 and Bob Smith with a 69.

Defending champion Dick Lotz, who led in the opening round this year with a 66, skied to a 75 Sunday for a 284 total.

Sunday's best round was turned in by tour rookie Ralph Johnston of Jackson Heights, N.Y., who had a 6-under-par 65—thanks to a hole-in-one on the 151-yard 16th hole. That gave Johnston an even-par 284 for the tournament.

Casper, the pre-tournament favorite, had a 70 Sunday but finished far back in the pack at 287 where he was tied with Lee Trevino, who shot a closing 67 in a desperate bid to win a berth in the Tournament of Champions.

Bucks overcome Lakers to win Western title

MILWAUKEE, Wis. (UPI)—The Milwaukee Bucks rolled into the finals of the National Basketball Association championship playoffs with a smashing 116-98 win over a crippled but gallant Los Angeles Lakers team Sunday.

Milwaukee came up with a balanced scoring attack and a relentless fast break to finally force the Lakers to wilt and then bow, losing the Western Division series four games to one.

The Bucks now play the winner of the Eastern Division series which was tied 3-3 Sunday when Baltimore beat New York 113-96. They will meet again Monday night to decide the series.

The NBA finals will open in Milwaukee Wednesday night.

Los Angeles, playing without Jerry West, Keith Erickson and Eglin Baylor, never gave up but they just didn't have the horses to stay with the Milwaukee Juggernaut.

Milwaukee jumped to a 21-15 lead but Los Angeles kept chipping away and finally took a 29-28 lead on a Willie Mc Carter jump shot with 31 seconds left in the first quarter. But a jumper by Bob Boozer with 18 seconds left gave Milwaukee a 30-29 lead going into the second period.

The Bucks took a 55-49 lead into the dressing room at intermission.

The Lakers hit a cold spell in the third quarter scoring just 17 points while hitting on only eight of 18 shots from the floor.

Jon Mc Glocklin had nine points and Bob Dandridge eight in the third quarter to lead the Bucks to an 81-66 advantage by the end of the period. Milwaukee kept up the pressure in the fourth.

All five Milwaukee starters contributed scores in double figures to the Bucks win. Greg Smith with 22 points was high man, Dandridge and Alcindor 20 each, Mc Glocklin 19 and ailing Oscar Robertson added 16.

Monroe-led Bullets overpower Knicks

BALTIMORE (UPI)—Blowing out to a 20-point lead with eight minutes left in the third quarter, the Baltimore Bullets crushed the New York Knics 113-96 Sunday behind Earl Monroe's 27 points to tie their Eastern Conference title series and send it into a deciding seventh game Monday Night in New York.

The victory was the third for Baltimore on its home court. The Knicks have won three in New York and have beaten Baltimore in eight of nine playoff games at Madison Square Garden in the last three years.

New York trailed 70-50 with 8:29 left in the third period and got no closer than 17 points the rest of the way. Jack Marin added 22 points to the Bullet attack. Dave DeBusschere led New York with 24 and Walt Frazier, who picked up three early fouls, had 22.

Monroe and John Tresvant sparked a first period assault which pushed Baltimore to a 24-18 lead. Monroe had 11 for the Bullets' first 13 points and Tresvant added eight of the last 12 in the period. The second quarter began as a shooting match between Marin and DeBusschere as the Bullets pulled into a 38-25 lead with 8:23 left in the period. Baltimore led 56-43 at halftime.

The Knicks cut the second quarter gap to 44-36 with five minutes left, but Gus Johnson came off the bench with eight of his 10 points in the period.

Trasvent got hot again early in the third quarter and contribted three baskets which built the 70-50 lead. Baltimore shot 65 per cent for the third period to New York's 50 per cent.

Petty wins Nascar car race

NORTH WILKESBORO, N.C. (UPI) — Richard Petty maneuvered his Plymouth into the lead on lap 275 and led the rest of the way in the Gwyn Staley 400 NASCAR grand national stock car race Sunday.

The Randleman, N.C., pilot finished a full lap ahead of David Pearson of Spartanburg, S.C. in a Ford.

Richard Brooks, a Porterville, Calif., driver, finished third. His 1970 Dodge was four laps off the pace.

Fourth was Benny Parsons in a 1971 Ford and Bobby Allison took 5th place in a 1971 Dodge.

Petty averaged a record 98.479 MPH for the 250 mile chase around the five-eighths mile asphalt oval. It was his seventh victory of the season, his seventh North Wilkesboro triumph, and the 126th win of his Grand National career.

He took home $4,545 of the $26,300 purse.

The win pushed his season winnings past the $106,000 mark—the third consecutive season in which he has passed the $100,000 mark.

There were no caution flags during the race, but pole sitter Bobby Isaac was sidelined after 355 laps when the engine of his Dodge failed.

Field trial competition closes

RUPERT — The Idaho Field Trial Association's spring competition being conducted at the Mac Neibauer ranch north of Paul, closed Sunday with the open all age, open shooting dog and the open shooting dog derby.

Sunrise, male English pointer, owned by Glenn Wise, also the handler, won the open all dog stakes. Second was Rubabe's Tug, male English pointer, owned by Ed Purves, Twin Falls, and handled by Len Garner, Paul, and third was Alkali Joe, male English pointer, Rulon Everton, Twin Falls, owner, and Len Garner, handler.

The open shooting trials went to California's Sammy Junior, male English pointer, George and Bonita Szody, Gilroy, Cal., owners, and Len Garner Handler. Beeline Cooper, male English pointer, owner and handler, Sanford Daines, Corrine, Utah, was second with Sunrise, male English pointer, Glenn Wise, owner and handler, was third.

In the open shooting dog derby, Boon Dox, male English pointer, Blaine Petty, Issaquah, Wash., owner, and Len Garner, handler, was first. Second went to Carter's Dixie Bell, female English pointer, owned and handled by Arnold Carter, Burley. Rubabe's Tug, male English pointer was third, owned by Ed Purves, Twin Falls, and handled by Len Garner.

Orioles overwhelm Yankees

BALTIMORE (UPI) — Paul Blair's three-run single on a 3-2 pitch with the bases loaded and two out in the second inning highlighted a six-run rally Sunday and carried the Baltimore Orioles to an 11-6 victory over the New York Yankees.

The Orioles scored first on a first inning leadoff homer by Don Buford but fell behind in the Yankee second when Bobby Murcer cracked a two-run homer off Baltimore starter Mike Cuellar.

The Orioles then scored six runs on four hits and three walks off Yankee starter Stan Bahnsen, who has an 0-8 lifetime record against Baltimore, and reliever Bill Burbach.

Brewers split with Royals

MILWAUKEE (UPI)—A bases-loaded single by Tommy Harper with one out in the 13th inning scored Ted Savage with the winning run Sunday to give the Milwaukee Brewers a 3-2 win and a doubleheader split with the Kansas City Royals.

The Royals won the first game, 2-1, on Paul Schaal's ninth-inning home run.

Tom Burgmeir struck out the first man to face him in the 13th and then walked the next two to put runners on first and second. The call then went off for Ted Abernathy and Savage and Roberto Pena greeted him by pulling off a double steal that put runners on second and third. Abernathy walked Phil Roof and Harper hit a 0-1 pitch to the left field wall, scoring Save.

The marathon game was marked by 25 strikeouts—15 by Kansas City pitchers.

Hawaiians swamp Koreans

TOKYO (UPI)—The University of Hawaii basketball team Saturday night swamped Korea University of Seoul, 108-76, for its seventh straight triumph without a loss in Japan.

A crowd of 2,000 spectators at the Olympic Annex Gymnasium saw the Hawaii cagers outclass the hard fighting Koreans all the way.

Bob Nash, of Connecticut, Jerome Freeman of Chicago, Dwight Holiday of California, John Penebacker of Cincinnati and Al Davis of Chicago started for Hawaii and gave the team a 56-32 lead at half time.

Tim De Silva of Hilo and Dennis Salas of Honolulu, the only two home town members of the team, started as the second half opened but were benched after seven minutes. They were used again in the last five minutes of the game.

The Koreans fought hard but were no match for the taller Hawaii players. They tried to work the ball close under the basket but were thwarted by the tight guarding of their opponents.

Hawaii led 73-40 after five minutes and 85-53 at 10 minutes in the second half.

Davis was high scorer with 29 points.

Freeman won enthusiastic applause with his brilliant backhand passing and dribbling.

Hawaii will wind up its schedule Sunday with a game against the Japanese national team, which is trying to win a berth from Asia to play in the 1972 Olympic Games in Munich.

Indians beat Senators in two

CLEVELAND (UPI)—Steve Dunning tossed a one-hitter in pitching his first complete game in the major leagues Sunday and the Cleveland Indians snapped a four-game losing streak by defeating the Washington Senators, 1-0, in the second game of a doubleheader.

Denny McLain's three-hitter gave Washington a 4-0 victory in the opener.

Dunning, who posted a 4-9 record after joining the Indians from Stanford University last June, gave up a single to Tom McGraw in the second innings. The 21-year-old righthander, who filled the bases in the second, didn't allow a Washington runner to reach second base in the next seven innings. Dunning struck out seven and walked six.

Morgan leads Astro win

LOS ANGELES (UPI)—Joe Morgan drove in four runs with a homer and a sacrifice fly Sunday as the Houston Astros pounded out 15 hits for an 8-6 decision over the Los Angeles Dodgers.

Morgan's three-run homer highlighted a five-run explosion in the Astro fifth after the Dodgers tallied three times in the fourth.

Mets, Pirates share victories

NEW YORK (UPI)—Gary Gentry allowed only one hit in the opener—a sixth-inning triple by Roberto Clemente—in pitching the New York Mets to a 5-2 victory Sunday but the Pittsburgh Pirates bounced back to take the nightcap 2-1 on Willie Stargell's run-scoring single in the ninth inning.

A crowd of 51,905 stayed to watch ex-Met Bob Johnson stop the Mets in the nightcap on six hits after Gentry had turned in the second one-hitter of his career in the first game. Gentry, who got home run support from Cleon Jones and Tommie Agee, showed the form that made him the Mets' best pitcher during spring training. He retired the Pirates in order in seven of nine innings to notch his first victory of the season after two losses.

It was Gentry's first victory since August 18 last season. Gentry struck out six and walked three in besting Luke Walker, who allowed only three hits and struck out 12 in seven innings but Jones' two-run homer in the sixth tagged him with his first loss in two decisions.

The Pirates' only hit led to their two runs and gave them a short-lived 2-1 lead. Gentry, who had pitched out of a bases-loaded jam in the fifth, walked Richie Hebner with one out in the sixth and Clemente lined a triple to left-center to score Hebner. Stargell then scored Clemente on a sacrifice fly.

Smoking ban

STOCKHOLM (UPI) — Sweden's former premier Tage Erlander, now a member of Parliament, has proposed a total ban on smoking in the new Parliament building.

"The pollution of our environment is serious enough," he said. "At least, we should avoid polluting the place in which we work." Erlander stopped smoking 33 years ago. He admits he had a relapse in 1942 but definitely put away cigarettes after a bad cold.

Angels beat Minnesota

By United Press International

The streaking California Angels built up a 5-1 lead behind third-inning homers by Jim Spencer and Alex Johnson Sunday and then survived three-run ninth-inning rally to beat the slumping Minnesota Twins, 5-4.

Pinch-hitter Rod Carew knocked out California starter Clude Wright with a run-scoring single with two out in the ninth and Rick Renick greeted Dave LaRoche with a two-run double that cut California's lead to 5-4.

Montreal tops Reds in two

MONTREAL (UPI) — Rusty Staub drove in three runs in the nightcap as the Montreal Expos swept a doubleheader from the Cincinnati Reds Sunday, 3-2 and 5-3 to move atop the National League's Eastern Division for the first time in their three-year history.

It was the fourth consecutive victory for the Expos, who took three in a row from Cincinnati in addition to their home opener from the New York Mets.

Staub homered in the first inning after Boots Day singled to tie the score at 2-2. In the seventh, Staub doubled to drive home Ron Hunt who had walked.

The Expos scored the winning run in the second inning when Jim Fairey singled and went to third on two wild pitches by starter Jim McGlothlin. A single by Bobby Wine brought in Fairley.

Angels sweep Chicago

CHICAGO (UPI) — Sal Bando hit a tie-breaking homer in the seventh inning Sunday and added a bases-loaded double in the ninth to power the Oakland A's to a 6-1 victory over the Chicago Whitesox and a double-header sweep after Vida Blue pitched a six-hitter in the 11-2 opening game triumph.

The double victory put Oakland in a virtual first place tie with California in the Western Division of the American League.

Diego Segui picked up his third victory against one loss while tossing an eight-hitter in the second game.

Giants take two over Cubs

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI)—Fran Healy drove in four runs with a homer and three singles to steer San Francisco to an 8-1 victory and a doubleheader sweep of the Chicago Cubs Sunday after a base-clearing double by Frank Johnson and a two-run homer by Bobby Bonds had powered the Giants to a 5-1 decision in the opener.

The two victories extended San Francisco's winning streak to eight games and gave the Giants an overall record of 11-2 and a three-game lead in the National League West after only two weeks of play.

Healy, who helped win a game for the Giants during the current streak with an extra inning homer, drove in two runs with his first single in the opening inning of the nightcap when the Giants scored four runs against Chicago rookie Bill Bonham and sent him down to his first loss in his initial Big League start.

Healy then hit a two-run homer during a three-run third inning rally as the Giants made it a rout. Beneficiary of the second game hitting was Rich Robertson who settled down after the fifth to go the distance and even his record at 1-1. The Cubs reached Robertson for six hits and their only run came on Ron Santo's first homer of the year in the seventh. Robertson, though, issued six walks in the first five innings and was in constant trouble. The Cubs stranded 11 runners in the nightcap.

Cardinals glide by Padres

SAN DIEGO (UPI)—Leron Lee hit a pinch double with two out in the ninth inning to drive in Ted Sizemore, who had walked, to break a 2-2 tie and Matty Alou singled in another run to give the St. Louis Cardinals a 4-2 win over the San Diego Padres Sunday.

Housewife describes Red China tour

By GERALDINE NESEK
Written for UPI

First Day
China

Saturday, April 10—Entering China is an uncertain pleasure. Sort of almost fearful. You don't know what to expect but you're so excited. The difference between Hong Kong and China is the cleanliness. Hong Kong is very dirty. As we crossed the border I see the landscaping around the station house is immaculate. The customs officials do not check our baggage. In the custom's building the first thing we see, of course, is the statue of Mao Tse-tung.

painting in the room and white chair covers with white lace doilies on them. This is the case everywhere we went. In each hotel we were in and at each banquet we went to, I noticed that the doilies were always on the furniture, on the backs and arms, and this reminded me of old European homes.

I find that we are just as big a curiosity to the Chinese people as they are to us. They are looking to inspect us and judge us like we are going to do to them. But we would be a curiosity any place, even in America, because of the extremes in our group.

Oh my goodness the difference in the trains in China and Hong Kong. The one in Hong Kong is like the Year One compared to this one in China. The train has big bay windows and very comfortable chairs in compartments and I think it is airconditioned.

Things are backwards with the meals. In America we have nuts with cocktails before we eat. But here we are served the nuts on the third course and the last. And then followed by soup,

There is a traditional brush which we eat first! The soup and the nuts at the end of the meal.

This meal we had at the border. On the train we are served tea or juice or beer and of course we have the music interspersed with sayings of Mao Tse-tung.

On the train we talk with the interpreters. They talk very freely and haven't shunned any subject. I learn that they encourage their youths to marry late in life because of the burden of responsibility.

One thing I have observed is that I haven't yet seen any young girls with babies. The Chinese do practice birth control, but it's not because of the number of the people. They want more people, because there is so much to do.

As soon as we meet the people in Canton, from the top people to those who serve us tea, they are gracious. They keep telling us they want us to enjoy ourselves. As soon as I start speaking to them all my fears disappear.

I have an interesting conversation with one of the interpreters. The feeling I get is that Mao Tse-tung is not only their physical leader but their spiritual leader as well—all in one.

We haven't yet discussed politics. But little phrases are put in the conversation. One of them says they want peace but they are not afraid to fight. They welcome us as American people. They want us to know that China has always been friendly with American people. Maybe not with American government, but certainly with American people.

After a short while in Canton we leave for Peking.

Peking

We arrive in Peking after the flight on a four-engine propeller plane from Canton. Peking is not colorful. The streets, at least those we've been on, are very very wide. The city itself does not seem residential. More people seem to live on the outskirts. There are huge buildings of the different branches of government, different museums and things like that.

The hotel when we walk in is very dark and there are only lights where they are necessary and the wattage is low too. Our room has the necessities only.

Second Day

Sunday, April 11 — After breakfast Erroll (Mrs.Resek's husband) and other players and I go to this square of Heavenly Peace. This square reminds me of Washington, D.C., where you have all the main buildings together and you can go sightseeing from one monument to another or one building to another.

At the Gate of Heavenly Peace, there are four of us, and we all get separated. I turn around and realize there are 200 people following me. And pretty soon they are on the side of me and in front of me and I am sort of enveloped in a sea of faces. Especially children. The children are most friendly. A woman lets me touch her child.

We find out that they have no schooling on sex. They just let their children find out for themselves. They don't freeze up on any subject. The Chinese talk to us freely about everything.

I think it's marvelous the relationship between the parents and the children. I haven't seen any parent having to correct his child, as I often do in the states. Everyone seems on the street so happy.

Third Day

Monday, April 12—Sightseeing and a visit to Chinghua University. The thing that impresses me the most is that they apply the theoretical with the practical. Like if they're learning how to build a car they actually are building a car. There are actually factories within the school.

We visit a girls dormitory. It's very spartan. The walls are not even painted. But everything is so clean and neat. They have nothing that is not absolutely necessary.

Lunch at the university. Then off for the Great Wall of China. That's really something. It's really two walls with a road in between. One thing I notice about all tourist attractions. The Chinese don't write on the walls like we do. No graffiti.

Back at the hotel we have dinner. Then the doctor visits quite a few of us. Tummy trouble.

Went shopping. The store is supposed to close at 8:30 p.m. but they keep it open especially for us.

Fourth Day

Tuesday, April 13 — John Tannehill gets sick. He's being taken to a hospital for tests. But he's okay and goes back to the hotel to rest.

We play our first public games. Some of the team are nervous performing before so many people—18,000 seats and all are filled. The play is really an exhibition and not a match.

The Chinese are obviously superior. These are called friendly matches, and that's exactly what they are. I think the Chinese sometimes let us win.

The audience was composed entirely of army and navy personnel. No children. The Chinese never show emotion when they miss a shot or lose a point.

Fifth Day

Wednesday, April 14—the big day. We meet Chou En-lai, the premier, at 2:30 p.m. He greets us immediately on entering room in the Great Hall of the People. His appearance is very impressive. He wears the typical Mao Tse-tung high-collar uniform, but this is obviously of a very expensive material.

We sit in a circle with delegates from four other countries and Chou talks to each group. He speaks through an interpreter but he speaks English well. When his interpreter uses a wrong word, he holds up his hand and she corrects herself.

The premier asks if there are any questions. Glen Cowan asks what he thinks of the hippie movement. The premier gives an answer which, in effect, says you learn only by talking about problems, that you must listen and not only talk.

Sixth Day

Thursday, April 15—We leave for Shanghai. The plane is sort of primitive. The stewardesses dress sort of like the peasants.

I notice immediately that the clothes on the people in Shanghai are more colorful than those on people in Peking. Even the room at the hotel is much larger and nicer. The city is more residential than Peking.

There was literature in the rooms in Peking, but I notice there is none in the Shanghai hotel rooms, only in the lobby. Towels in Shanghai are thicker and newer.

Another huge meal, at the Shanghai industrial exhibition. One of the girls mistakes a duck egg for a boiled potato. Is she surprised!

I notice one woman in Shanghai with makeup on. Not much, just lipstick. But this is the only time I've seen any woman wearing makeup. Her hair is in braids but it's teased a little too. You never see couples holding hands.

Seventh Day

Friday, April 16 — Visit Shanghai industrial exhibition, which is permanent. Most impressed by cars, which look like Mercedes Benz but are made in China.

Trip to a farming commune called Ma Lo. This of our whole trip we appreciate the most.

A commune is like a village. I always thought that they lived in a dormitory but they actually live in houses. Family invites us to see their home. Noticed they store the extra rice and oats in the parents' bedroom. Interpreter says this is average family.

We go directly from the commune to the airport and the flight to Canton. Again we are given a warm send-off.

Canton

We are rushed immediately from the airport to see a ballet performance. We hadn't expected to see so much culture in China.

We all hope to go back to the hotel and get some sleep. But after the theater they tell us it's another banquet, and it's 11 p.m.

Eighth day

Saturday, April 17—We rise early to catch a train back to Hong Kong. At the railway station we say farewell to our Canton hosts.

We reached the border, and as I cross onto the bridge leading to Hong Kong I look back and see the interpreter who was the first person I had seen when entering China and who has become my friend. I can't help it. I have to cry.

Trade fair draws 300 Westerners

CANTON (UPI) —Approximately 300 businessmen from Western nations are attending the semiannual trade fair in this city of Southern China.

Many of the Western visitors including a group of Canadians, were at opening day Thursday and more were expected before the fair closes May 15.

The trade fair, which is held each year in the spring and fall, was first organized in 1957. As Communist China has the potential to develop a major world economy, businessmen from all over the world attend the event.

Normally the fair closes on Saturday afternoon, a time for "political study," and Sunday is a day off. But a late morning phone call informing fair officials that American newsmen were here for only a few days brought an invitation to come over for a tour.

The fair is in an enormous 10-story building. The guide, Song Shen-law, a girl of 27, said the building houses several hundred thousand products on display.

The building sits on the edge of the Pearl River. Across the river there are two smaller auxiliary buildings which house light industry products, arts and crafts and carpets.

In the auxiliary building housing the carpet exhibition, there is a "Friendship Garden" where one can buy such exotic birds as cranes.

But the center of the fair is the huge main building that holds everything from hydroelectric power equipment to foodstuffs.

On the ground floor, hydroelectric power equipment exhibits and electronic equipment are featured. Moving through the building, one can inspect such items as both Western and Chinese chemicals and medicines, textiles, foodstuffs and garments, and aquatic products. The foodstuffs come in frozen and canned form.

Each exhibit floor has small rooms where would-be purchasers negotiate terms with Chinese trade personnel.

Miss Song said Japan, which has the largest delegation of businessmen here, is the biggest buyer of Chinese beer.

She added that the rising number of businessmen from the West at the fair was due to China's developing trade relations.

Miss Song said self-reliance is the key to building the country, but China needs to learn what is necessary from more technically advanced countries.

Sick boy holds on 2nd week

OAKLAND, Calif. (UPI)—The world's sickest boy completed three weeks of unrelenting medical care Saturday in a massive effort to make him the second person in history to survive rabies.

"If anyone were to leave his room for five minutes, he'd be dead," said a member of a team of physicians.

Six-year-old Honofre Angel, the victim, remained deeply comatose and paralyzed, but doctors at Children's Hospital Medical Center here were encouraged by several promising signs.

Honofre is totally dependent on machines to keep him alive. Machines perform most of his body functions.

But Dr. Edward Duffie Jr. saw promise in an electroencephalogram showing the child's brain is still alive. A reflex test involving the boy's toes suggests a lack of brain damage.

His major problem is maintaining a balance of body salts and water, a problem being attacked by use of hormones.

Honofre was bitten by a rabid dog while visiting in Mexico with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Ascencion Angel of Vallejo, Calif.

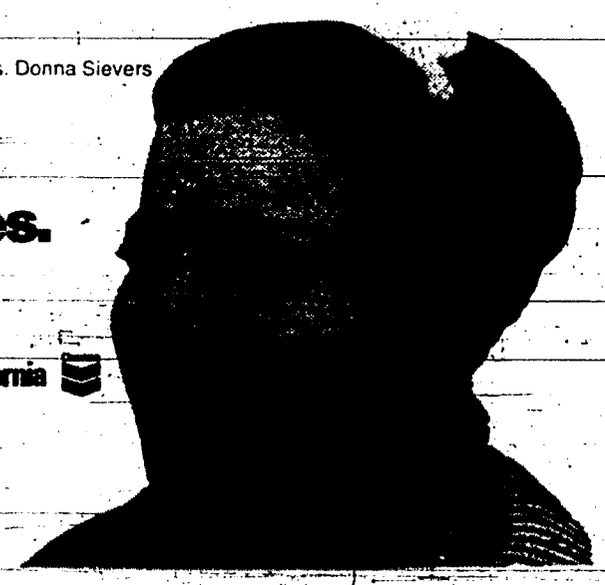

The only other survivor of rabies is Michael Winkler, 6, of Lima, Ohio, who was bitten by a bat. In the Winkler case, doctors learned it is possible to keep the patient alive long enough for the rabies virus to burn out.

"...and I just never knew the difference in gasoline until I had tried F-310."

U.S. losing science lead

By DAVID HASKELL

WALTHAM, Mass. (UPI)—The United States is rapidly losing its technology lead to the Soviet Union and is in danger of falling far behind, according to one U.S. scientist, Dr. George N. Hatsopoulos.

One reason for the lag, Hatsopoulos says, is that the Soviets sat back while the U.S. did all the expensive preliminary research and development, and then picked up where this country left off "when we dropped the ball."

Hatsopoulos, president of Thermo Electron Corp., and a pioneer in the field of thermionics —the conversion of atomic energy directly into electricity —said "the leadership of this country today, in technology, has resulted from investments that were made 10 years ago."

But because the investments are not now being made to sustain our lead, "I don't think we can avoid the technology gap," he said.

Hatsopoulos' comments in an interview were prompted by a recent report out of Moscow that the Soviets had made a "breakthrough" in the development and testing of an advanced engineering system capable of converting nuclear energy directly into electricity.

The thermionic converter had an electrical capacity of "several kilowatts," the report said, far ahead of American efforts. Hatsopoulos said that only with wise and efficient spending could the United States close this gap, and this would take three to five years.

However, he held out little hope the funding would be forthcoming. Under the present economic climate the United States, he said, "We will never catch up."

The direct conversion of atomic energy into electricity has extremely attractive application possibilities—both militarily and commercially—including use on spaceships and beneath the oceans, any remote area where traditional power supplies are impossible.

Nuclear power plants under construction now in the United States produce heat that is converted to steam which drives turbines to generate electricity.

Hatsopoulos, a senior lecturer in mechanical engineering at Massachusetts Institute of Technology, said the United States about a dozen years ago was funding "every idea no matter how crazy."

The Soviets, on the other hand, didn't have that kind of money to throw around so were very cautious about what they invested in.

After spending many millions of dollars, Hatsopoulos said, American scientists determined that thermionics was feasible. To reach this point was extremely expensive, he said, because "more money in a development goes in finding out what is not the way of doing things."

Hatsopoulos, who wrote the article on thermionics for the 1967 edition of Encyclopledia Britannica, said the United States spent literally millions of dollars in "weeding out the bad from the good ideas, finding out what you shouldn't do and what you should do."

"So what happened?" he asked. "The attention of the American mind went to something else—pollution, the war. So, we dropped the ball, which is about the time that the Russians picked up the ball."

He said the United States spent hundreds of millions of dollars investigating a dozen methods to find out which one works, and once that was determined all the Soviets had to do was concentrate on that one which they knew was good because of U.S. efforts.

"The asinine thing," he said, "is that we dropped the ball after all that investment."

Protestors given free hand in D.C.

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Nixon administration, in an apparent major shift in attitude, has decided to give antiwar demonstrators virtually a free reign when they hold a huge rally here April 24.

For the first time, federal officials have ordered no standby alert for U.S. troops to cope with possible trouble.

"We don't want to overreact," a Justice Department spokesman said Friday. "We want to be ready and we want to be helpful."

"We don't really anticipate any need for troops in buildings or anywhere else. There won't be an alert there in the city."

The only law enforcement group visible for the rally and march sponsored by the National Peace Action Coalition next Saturday will be the 5,100-member District of Columbia police force, a department spokesman said.

The Justice Department said its negotiators had conferred with spokesmen for the peace group for several weeks.

"There has been excellent communication and we have been able to resolve all questions," a negotiator said.

Federal officials agreed to issue a permit allowing crowds, forecast at 50,000 persons for planning purposes, to assemble on the ellipse, a circular park between the White House and the Washington Monument grounds. The demonstrators will march no closer than a block from the White House.

Last May 9, troops were stationed inside several government buildings during rally protesting the American invasion of Cambodia. About 100,000 demonstrators turned out for that demonstration.

A federal court judge Friday granted the government a temporary restraining order prohibiting the Vietnam Veterans Against the War from establishing a campsite on the Capitol mall.

Elected

WASHINGTON (UPI) —The American Society of Newspaper Editors has named C. A. "Pete" McKnight, editor of the Charlotte, N.C., Observer, its new president.

McKnight succeeds Newbold Noyes, editor of the Washington Star. The ASNE's directors Friday elected J. Edward Murray of the Arizona Republic of Phoenix vice president and Arthur C. Deck of the Salt Lake Tribune, Salt Lake City, Utah, secretary-treasurer.

This is no stop sign.

Helping others is an old American tradition. When we see someone hitchhiking along the road—perhaps a young man who could be on his way back to college—it's our natural inclination to stop and offer a lift. Unfortunately, it's a dangerous inclination. Time and again, the generous gesture of a motorist has turned to tragedy, with robbery, assault or murder the reward for a lift along the road. N.A.D.A. safety experts estimate it happens nearly 100 times every day.

The message is clear. Don't stop to pick up a stranger. A hitchhiker's appearance is no indication of his character—or intentions. In addition to the risk of robbery or attack, there is danger in stopping suddenly for a hitchhiker when other cars are on the road behind you.

We want you and your family to be safe whenever you travel by car. So next time you see a hitchhiker, leave him be. You'll still be doing someone a kindness. Your family and yourself.

"Drive A Little—Save A Lot"

Black bass thought by some to be fightingest fish in Gem waters

By JIM HUMBIRD
Idaho Fish-Game Department

BOISE — What's the gamest, fightingest fish of all in Idaho?

It's pretty much fisherman's choice, ranging from rainbow trout to sea-run steelhead to massive Kamloops rainbow trout, or even mackinaw at scenic Priest Lake.

Cutthroat and brown trout are popular species and chinook salmon have a kind of magic that mesmerizes anglers into believing that they must catch one at all costs.

Other fishermen go for sturgeon, even on a catch-and-release basis, while some fish for coho salmon, kokanee or blueback, greyling, channel and flathead catfish, brown bullheads, yellow perch, crappie and other warm water species.

Still others fish for black bass, both the large-mouth and the smallmouth. So widespread is their habitat and liberal the regulations that they can be found somewhere throughout the year. Inveterate bass fishermen will not switch to other kinds of angling no matter what season of the year it may be.

They say that ounce for ounce, pound for pound, black bass is the gamest fish that swims. The largemouth bass is not rated as gamey by most anglers as its close relative, the smallmouth. It hits a lure hard and puts up a good fight. However, the duration of the struggle is less than that of the smallmouth. The endurance of the largemouth probably is less because it lives in more sluggish waters.

The bass are introduced species of fish. The first record of largemouth introduction into Idaho was in 1887 when William H. Ridenbaugh of Bouse received 50 six-inch fish, which were retained in a small pond. In 1892 he released 2,224 bass from his pond and the U.S. Fish Commission released 1,597 bass. Both releases were made in the Boise River. The species spread into the sloughs of the lower river and eventually spread over the entire state.

The range of the smallmouth bass in Idaho is limited. According to James C. Simpson, chief of the fisheries division, this species migrated up the Snake River from Washington and found suitable habitat in the lower Clearwater above Lewiston and in the Snake River from Weiser to Swan Falls, and also in the lower Boise and Payette rivers.

Simpson says that to the casual observer the smallmouth bass looks similar to the largemouth bass. However, upon examination, they can be distinguished by the shorter upper jaw bone or maxillary of the smallmouth which extends to, but not beyond, the center of the pupil of the eye; while in the largemouth, it extends back of the eye.

In the smallmouth, the small scales across the cheek number from 15 to 18 in a row, while in a largemouth the number is 10 or 11. The outline of the dorsal fin, which is an erect position, is only slightly depressed in the center. In the largemouth, the depression between the spiny and soft dorsal is cut so deeply that it almost divides the dorsal into two fins.

The preferred habitat of smallmouth bass is cool flowing streams and large clear lakes. In streams they seek out protective cover such as the backwaters of large boulders, stumps, rock ledges and other hiding places, from which they can dart out with small effort to catch their prey and chase off intruders.

Largemouth, on the other hand, prefer the quiet waters of lakes, sloughs and reservoirs. They hit hard and fight valiantly enough to hold the interest of beginner and veteran alike. Their best scrap often is made in shallow water, where they feed. They devour minnows, hellgrammites, frogs, bugs, mice, crayfish and a wide assortment of creatures that creeps, crawl, fly or swim.

It is not uncommon to hear about bass gulping ducklings out of the water, not to mention squirrels, snakes, birds and the like.

The color of smallmouth bass usually is greenish-bronze to black on the back and sides, with the belly a grayish-white. Like other species, however, the color of bass varies in different waters. The young have dusky spots on the sides which generally have the appearance of forming dark vertical bars. But they never show the dark longitudinal streak that is characteristic of the young of largemouth.

Largemouth bass are olive green above with whitish underparts. There is usually a dark lateral band on the sides which covers three or four rows of scales. This species can be distinguished from smallmouth by the angle of the jaw. In largemouth, the maxillary bone extends to or beyond the middle of the eye. The largemouth differs from smallmouth in the absence of vertical bars and dark mottlings on the sides.

Largemouth bass are the most popular of the spiny-ray fishes with fishermen, according to Simpson. However, due to the greater abundance of perch, Crappie, and brown bullheads, probably more of these species are caught. There is no bag or possession limit.
